

Marines Secure Hill 881 After Bloody 12-Day Fight

BY JONATHAN RANDAL
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
HILL 881, North, South Vietnam—Weary, dirty United States Marines yesterday secured this last major high ground commanding isolated Khesanh airstrip and valley to climax a 12-day campaign which cost the Americans almost half their combat troops in dead and wounded.
Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the American commander in Vietnam, echoed Marine fears when he warned reporters during an inspection visit to Khesanh, "I don't think the battle is necessarily over."

"I anticipate further fighting in the general area," The general spoke of "tremendous" casualties suffered by the 55th and 18th Regiments of the 325th North Vietnamese Infantry Division which American spokesman said had lost at least 570 and probably 598 dead. But he said nothing of casualties to the two Marine battalions, which were officially given as 160 dead and 746 wounded.
The final assault on Hill 881 North was launched yesterday afternoon. By nightfall company E of the 2nd Battalion, 3d Marine Regiment, actually secured part of the crest of this once heavily wooded hillock, now a wasteland denuded by hundreds of tons of bombs and thousands of artillery shells. At dawn yesterday morning Company E pushed off to secure the final bit of enemy-held territory. But shortly after 7 a.m. the Marines ran into sporadic small arms and automatic weapons fire. Rather than risk the kind of infantry assault against enemy bunkers which cost them so dearly earlier in the fighting, the Marines pulled back again. This time they shelled and bombed the North Vietnamese position for two and a half hours.

But when the Marines advanced they were again met by enemy fire from five bunkers which had survived the full might of American air power and artillery over the last four days. In the final fighting, three North Vietnamese soldiers were killed, seven Marines were wounded and 17 enemy weapons were captured.

"How they survived 1,000 pound bombs is what gets me," said 1st Lt. Jack Adinolfi, 23 years old, of Granville, N.Y.
The Marines were surprised by the tenacity of the enemy troops since the start of fighting for the triangle of hills dominating the approaches to the Khesanh airstrip five miles

Deputies Identify Laughlin

The body recovered Thursday on an island in Conewago Creek near Venturatown was officially declared yesterday to be James Leo Laughlin of Lakewood, N.Y., who had been reported missing since March 10.
The County Sheriff's Department said last night that positive identification was made on the prescription of a pair of glasses found on the deceased. The identification was made by a local eye doctor.
According to chief sheriff's deputy Richard Hegerty, an identification was believed to have also been made by a Jamestown dentist who examined dentures of the victim.
He said the apparent cause of death was listed as suicide.
Requiem mass for Mr. Laughlin will be recited at 11 a.m. Monday in Sacred Heart Church. The Rev. John T. Horne of that church will officiate. Burial will be in Sunset Hill Cemetery.
He was born in Randolph, N.Y., on July 17, 1907, the son of the late Patrick and Catherine McGinn Laughlin but had been a resident of Lakewood for the past 15 years. He worked at Sunshine Discount Company in Warren for the past 32 years.
He was a member of Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church of Lakewood and its Holy Name Society. He held memberships in the Knights of Columbus, Celtics Club; and was a former member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.
Surviving are his widow, the former Evelyn O. Carlson, whom he married on Sept. 20, 1930 in Randolph; a sister, Mrs. Paul Bentley of Randolph; a brother, Patrick Laughlin of Spencerport, N. Y.; and two nephews.
Besides his parents he was preceded in death by a son, Richard Laughlin on Dec. 12, 1954.
Friends may call at Lind Funeral Home, Jamestown, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. today and tomorrow. A parish rosary will be recited at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow.

IT'S OLD HAT

Wearing a bonnet as old as the Commonwealth's Constitution, Mrs. Jane Bergier last night emphasized the need for revision of the constitution through approval of eight amendments and one question on the ballot May 16. Mixing in state and local affairs is old hat to her, too; she's the chairman of constitutional revision for the League of Women Voters. Last night, she was toastmistress for Craig Truax's talk on constitutional reform. (Photo by Mahan)

AFTER EIGHT MONTHS

World Journal Tribune Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — The fledgling World Journal Tribune ceased publication yesterday after only eight months of existence, attributing its death to union harassment and a new and higher wage pattern in the industry.
"The thing that has brought us to this day is the intransigence of the unions," declared the afternoon and Sunday newspaper's president, Matt Meyer. The World Journal Tribune was losing money at the rate of $8.4 million a year, he said, and no one had shown any interest in buying it.
First published after a 140-day strike last year, the World Journal Tribune closed in the midst of a new round of New York newspaper wage negotiations in which a pattern, of a 21 percent wage increase over three years already has been set.
"It is totally impractical for the World Journal Tribune to assume this increased burden," Meyer said. He added that the decision to kill the paper was made Wednesday night.
Meyer set circulation of the World Journal Tribune at 700,000 daily and 900,000 Sunday. It was the third in size of four Manhattan dailies, and seventh in the nation in size among afternoon newspapers.
The closing threw 2,500 persons out of jobs. Some wept. Others covered their emotions beneath wry comment and wise-cracks.
It left Manhattan with a single afternoon newspaper of general circulation, the tabloid New York Post. Two morning dailies see NEWSPAPER, Page A-2

'BEST CHANCE WE EVER HAD'

Truax Speaks Here On Constitution Reform Question

Craig Truax, Secretary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, spoke at Warren County courthouse last night in support of constitutional revision. It was noted at the meeting that the Warren County Labor Council has endorsed a "yes" vote on all nine questions concerning the constitution May 16. The executive board of Warren Area Chamber of Commerce also voted recently to support constitutional revision according to Mrs. Jane Bergier, who conducted the meeting.
Truax's speech did not differ greatly from statements he made to a TMO reporter in an interview at Warren Airport yesterday afternoon.
Asked about the importance of the proposed Pennsylvania constitutional convention which appears on the May 16 primary ballot, Truax observed:
"In my opinion, this is the last roll call on such a proposal for both parties. It's the best chance we ever had, and I hope the voters won't pass it up."
Truax said the way this convention question is set up is the best opportunity the people have ever had to get a convention which they can influence.
He said "This is the point I'm trying to make to people, particularly party officers, committeemen and committee-women and elected officials in local government. I say this because every measurement of public opinion indicates a convention has generally popular support. I believe it is inevitable that a convention will be held in the State of Pennsylvania—if not this year, within a very few years."
"This convention is what I believe people should have. It is restricted in the areas it can go into. The two parties themselves would meet this summer and select the people they will run for delegates. Both parties are rooted in the

SPEAKS OUT ON REFORM

Craig Truax, Secretary of the Commonwealth, was in Warren yesterday to urge revision of the state's Constitution at the polls on May 16. He praised the local system of justice of the peace schools, but said that this was not the case throughout Pennsylvania. Many justices, he said, do not have any understanding of the laws they are supposed to administer. (Photo by Mahan)

Dr. Ross Bryan, chairman of the Guy Lombardo concert sponsored by the Warren Lions Club said yesterday that positively no tickets will be available at the door for the concert at Warren Area High School at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow.
Bryan also emphasized doors will open no earlier than 7:30 p.m.—one hour before show time.

OVER CERTIFICATES, DISCONTINUANCE

Cable TV Controversy Arises

By STEVE CULLINANE
Controversy has arisen over a recent move by Warren Television Corporation.
Gail Park, the manager of Warren TV, recently sent a letter to some of the subscribers of the cable service. It said in part:
"As you know, there are two rate structures now in effect in Warren. One is for $3.95 per month, the other for $5.95 per month. The owners and operators of Warren TV feel that each customer should pay the same amount when they receive the same greatly expanded service."
"In the early days of cable television, those with the foresight and daring to enter this untraveled business area could only attempt to construct cable systems by having the members of the viewing public pay a sizeable installation fee to help offset the high risk factor of this venture. During these early formative years of the company, each new customer when he paid his $125 installation was issued a 'Capital Contribution Certificate' acknowledging this payment. His monthly rate was set at $3.95.
"The Capital Contribution Certificate is not a stock certificate, but merely an indication of the installation amount originally paid years ago. However, the present owners and operators of Warren TV realize that because of past practices in trading and bartering the 'Capital Contribution Certificate' an intrinsic value has been attributed to them which is presently somewhere between $40 to $50. So, while Warren TV has decided to recall, void, and cancel all existing certificates, we will issue a credit against each customer's account to the amount of $57 to be spread over a period of five years to insure that no one will lose the current value of his certificate.

"As of May 10, 1967, all Warren TV customers will be put on a standard $5.95-per-month-rate. However, customers currently holding valid Capital Contribution Certificates will not pay that amount at this time. Instead, you will be credited as follows: each customer turning in his Capital Contribution Certificate will actually pay only $4.70 a month for a three-year period beginning May 10, 1967 and ending May 9, 1970; then $5.45 for two years until May 9, 1972. At that time the standard rate of $5.95 per month will apply to everyone.
E. J. Farynowski of 105 Biddle st. replied to Park's letter and released his reply to the press. It reads in part:
"Thank you for your undated form letter mailed on April 17, 1967, outlining the discontinuance of the capital contribution certificate which in disguise is an overall rate increase.
"The people who originally invested $125 in these certificates should have preferential treatment in their rates, or the certificates called back at the original value and not at your arbitrary value of $57 over a five year period."

Pennsylvania's Liquor Control Board has announced a plan to raise the prices of some liquors and most wines in state liquor stores. The move comes in the middle of an investigation of the state's liquor control system and it follows by only a few months yet another price hike. The last increase was prompted by higher prices in New York State, which will not allow price increases if other states sell for less. Page A5.

Air Force Bombs Hanoi Rail Yard

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force bombers from Thailand bases struck in the Hanoi area yesterday, pounding a key rail yard and a North Vietnamese army barracks. Pilots claimed heavy damage in the raids.

U.S. military headquarters today made no mention of any American planes lost in the raids. Radio Hanoi claimed seven planes were shot down and several American pilots captured.

The eight-engine Stratofortresses pounded North Vietnamese staging and troop assembly areas and fortifications 13 miles northwest of the Sanh on Friday night and returned twice before dawn today to dump tons of explosives on the same target areas.

In the air raids over North Vietnam, Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs dropped 750-pound and 3,000-pound bombs on the Yen Vien railroad yard six miles east-northeast of the center of Hanoi and the Ha Dong army barracks four miles southwest of the Communist capital.

The large railroad facility was heavily damaged and the yard is "considered unserviceable," the U.S. Command said.

Truax

ed: "I am not in agreement with some lawyers that the minor judiciary should be made up of lawyers. That is ridiculous—it's absurd. It happens to be for changes in the JP system. I do think a salary for J.P.'s in Pennsylvania makes a lot of sense. It is basically wrong when people with money can take defendants to a man of their own choosing. That's no better than having a defendant pick his own judge. With the present system one J.P., living near a turnpike exit makes an awfully lot of money, while another J.P. makes nothing."

Truax said that in many counties the two parties have a hard time finding someone to run for J.P.

"My department commissions J.P.'s in Pennsylvania. We have people who didn't run, who were written in, and who refuse to accept the office. I'm not in favor of abolishing the J.P. system. We need a good J.P. system. The people want it."

Truax complimented Warren County on its justice-of-the-peace schools. "You do this voluntarily here in Warren County. It's most effective. Yet in many areas it is not required."

"When it comes to legal knowledge, it makes sense to have some requirement. There must be hundreds, possibly thousands, of J.P.'s in the state who haven't the faintest idea about the laws they are administering."

One Plane Each

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SAIGON — United States Air Force fighter planes fought North Vietnamese MIGs in at least seven dogfights north of Hanoi yesterday. One MIG-21 was shot down in the battles and a Navy jet was downed by groundfire.

both with Sunday editions, remain in the field, the Times and the Daily News. A generation ago the city had 12 metropolitan dailies.

The death of the World Journal Tribune also erased after more than 70 years the last vestiges in New York of two great newspaper empires. The paper was born out of the merger of the Hearst organization's Journal-American and the Scripps Howard World-Telegram & the Sun.

Nationally known columnists who lost their only New York outlet with the demise of the World Journal Tribune included Red Smith, Walter Lippman, Jimmy Breslin, Walter Winchell, Bob Considine, Jim Bishop, Joseph Alsop and William Buckley.

Meyer said in his statement announcing the end of the paper that a 21 per cent wage increase pattern set at the Daily News by the (AFL-CIO) International Typographical Union would add $10.5 million in payroll costs over three years to an operation already losing $700,000 a month.

Meyer quoted the president of the local printer's union, Bertram A. Powers, as declaring: "All they can do is pay or shut down."

Powers said the closing was a complete surprise to him and added: "I believe the difficulties this paper experienced were among the owners. I'm convinced there will be another paper to take its place in the afternoon field."

Partners in the World Journal Tribune were William Randolph Hearst Jr., chairman of the Hearst Corp.; Jack Howard, president and general editorial manager of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers; and John Hay Whitney, owner of the old Herald Tribune.

"I'm told they couldn't agree on letting one buy out the other. We heard all along that Whitney refused to put any more money into the operation."

The Herald Tribune originally had been planned as a morning adjunct to the new afternoon newspaper, but it folded during the strike that preceded the birth of the World Journal Tribune.

In reply to Powers' remarks, Meyer told a news conference: "I don't know how Mr. Powers would have any knowledge about what goes on at the board meetings of the World Journal Tribune. His statement was brought out of rank air. How would he know?"

Meyer was asked about the possibility that one of the owners might resume publication of this World Journal Tribune. He replied: "No, I think they've had their taste of it. This is irrevocable. All were getting a little tired of putting money into this paper."

As for himself, Meyer added: "If I had any money to invest it would not be in the New York newspaper field."

In connection with efforts to sell the paper before folding it, Meyers said: "We have been in touch with many other publishers over the past several weeks with this in mind. Their response has been, 'No, not at this point.'"

Among those contacted and not interested, Meyer said, was S. I. Newhouse, head of the Newhouse group of 22 newspapers.

Newhouse said he had no interest in the Manhattan newspaper field.

Cable Television

"Your service is enjoyed at the current rates charged, even though I believe they are high, but to increase them after a five-year period and giving your 'intrinsic value' of $57 credit for the original $125 is an insult to anyone's intelligence."

This is what the certificates themselves say:

"This certifies that ----- is registered as the contributor of $125 as a capital contribution to the Warren Television Corporation. Upon payment of the maintenance rental fees monthly in advance, the contributor is entitled to one residential television cable service connection with full rights and privileges as a subscriber as defined by the board of directors of the corporation. The rights and privileges covered by this certificate are transferable only on the books of the corporation upon surrender of this certificate properly endorsed. Witness the seal of said corporation and the signature of its duly authorized officers this -- day of --."

One such certificate issued in July, 1960, was signed by William J. Loucks, assistant secretary, and Robert E. Dunham, president.

The Capital Contribution Certificates in question were issued mostly during the middle and late 1950's, according to Park.

He noted that another kind of subscribers' certificate issued later also is being recalled. These other papers are called "Subscriber Installation Certificates."

They mention no dollar amount and say simply, "This certifies that ----- is registered as a subscriber of Warren Television Corporation. Upon payment of the fees monthly in advance, the subscriber is entitled to one residential television cable service connection with full rights and privileges as a subscriber. The rights and privileges covered by this certificate are transferable upon surrender of this certificate properly endorsed."

The total number of certificates (both Capital Contribution and Subscriber Installation) issued is 1,500 to 2,000, Park said. There are about 4,300 subscribers to Warren TV Corp. in all, he said.

Hill 881 North

to the southeast.

At no time did the enemy flee the battlefield, as he has so often done in the past. By the time Marine riflemen reached the hills' summits, bombs and artillery had reduced opposition to sporadic firing. Hill 881—the number stands for altitude in feet above sea level—was taken one week ago. Hill 881 south was occupied Tuesday and Hill 881 North was officially secured at 2:35 p.m. yesterday.

Westmoreland said the enemy had "definitely" come from Laos, whose mountainous border with South Vietnam lies seven miles northwest of the triangle.

To strengthen Marine firepower, 4.2 inch mortars were moved to Hill 881 South yesterday and a battery of 105 mm howitzers was advanced from the airstrip farther west in the coffee-growing valley.

Marine officers said they would start extensive patrolling in the mountains surrounding the triangle.

Illustrating the costliness of the campaign are the casualties suffered by Lt. Adinolfi's Company E, which since landing in Vietnam two weeks ago has lost 89 men dead or wounded of its 220-man strength. The entire second battalion has lost 51 men killed in the same period.

Standing in what he called "Stinky Valley", so named because of rotting North Vietnamese bodies still unburied, the lieutenant said, "I never cease to marvel at what marines do."

"We learned our lesson real hard and real fast," he said. "And if any of those S.O.B.'s are crazy enough to come up here tonight they're going to get killed."

Area Reps Vote Yes On 13 Bills

Rep. William C. Fuelhart this week cast affirmative votes for eight house bills while Senator Richard C. Frame gave the nod to four senate bills and one house bill.

Fuelhart approved bills which would require display of the American and Pennsylvania State flag at local police headquarters; imposing liability on parents for personal injury, destruction or loss of property by wilful acts of children under 18 and amending the vehicle code by further providing seats in school buses.

Other bills require certain vehicles to be equipped with windshield washers and providing penalties; limiting size of holes cut for ice fishing; designating additional purposes for use of Fish Fund money; eliminating provisions requiring advertising by State Game Commission in fixing hunting seasons and bag limits and providing for certain publicity in lieu of. The other bill further provides for the insurance policy required to relieve a person from a license suspension imposed or about to be imposed as result of judgment.

All eight bills passed.

Also passed were the five measures approved by Frame that deal with third class cities, procedure to determine when a Governor is unable to pursue his duties due to mental or physical disability, amending the administrative code to further provide purchases of handicapped-made products and services and fire protection costs in second class townships.

The Senate also approved increasing the membership in the Pennsylvania State Police force.

SOUTH OF THE BORDER

Lynda Bird Guards Provoke Disputes

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A storm boiled up yesterday over a clash between Colombian newsmen and the escort assigned to Lynda Bird Johnson, elder daughter of President Johnson.

This country's most influential newspaper, El Tiempo, exploded with anger. It extended its indignation to Texas and even to the administration of President Johnson, El Tiempo, ordinarily pro-United States, represents the ruling Liberal party of President Carlos Lleras Restrepo.

A member of the Colombian Congress vowed to bring the matter up there "in defense of our sovereignty." A reporter and photographer of El Tiempo announced plans to file charges of "attempted homicide, theft and destruction of private property" against the men who accompanied Lynda Bird to Barranquilla on a journalistic assignment.

The storm cast a shadow over Colombian-U.S. relations, only weeks after delicate summit negotiations at Punta del Este, Uruguay, where President Johnson and Lleras were believed to have resolved some of their differences.

Miss Johnson apologized for the incident, and spoke of the U.S. Secret Service, although in Washington a government spokesman denied that Secret Service agents had tangled with the newsmen at Barranquilla. Secret Service men always accompany members of a U.S. president's family on their travels.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said none of the embassy staff was involved. Miss Johnson arrived in Barranquilla on Wednesday en route to Cartagena, a Colombian coastal resort, to work on a story about the U.S. hospital ship Hope — anchored there four months to provide free medical service for poor Colombians and to train medical personnel. Newsmen and photographers crowded forward. Photographer Gustavo Vasquez and reporter Amado Blanco reported they were "hit and kicked several times by members of the escort," and that one man pulled a gun and "aimed it at us." The two said they were trying to photograph Miss Johnson as she left the plane. They said the camera was destroyed and seized by a member of the escort.

At Cartagena, Miss Johnson said she was "very sorry for the incident that was only due to error when the Secret Service men believed I was going to be attacked by several persons who they were not aware at the moment were journalists." The White House in Texas declined comment on the incident.

El Tiempo, in an editorial signed by one of its owners, said the incident "was a small demonstration of the Texas way of life," and the actions of Miss Johnson's escort were "very characteristic of the citizens of that state."

"The Texans look upon their neighbors south of the border with very little sympathy," it went on, "almost despising them."

It said President John F. Kennedy, who launched the Alliance for Progress, had "represented a generous and ample spirit."

ASSEMBLY BEGINS GALWAY, Ireland (AP) — Work has begun on assembling the organ for Galway's new Roman Catholic cathedral, which was consecrated at ceremonies attended by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, last year.

A five-man team from Liverpool will spend four months putting the 5,000 pieces of the 25,000-pound ($70,000) organ together.

Sylvania's Contract Disclosed

The new union contract at Sylvania includes a number of increases in wages and fringe benefits, said S.T. Glossner, supervisor of personnel at Warren area Sylvania plants, recently.

Glossner said the agreement provides for four separate three per cent general wage increases effective April 10, 1967; Sept. 4, 1967; Sept. 2, 1968, and Sept. 1, 1969 for hourly employees. In addition, the agreement provides for a cost of living formula which could provide an additional 1 1/2 per cent increase on Sept. 1, 1969, said Glossner.

Adjustments up to 10 cents per hour for certain skilled classifications will, he said, be made in addition to the general increases.

The agreement also provides for "expanded or increased" benefits under "such company-paid programs as pensions and retirements; holidays; vacations; life insurance, and hospital, surgical and medical benefits," said Glossner.

These benefit improvements include, he said: —Two week paid vacation after two years instead of three years of service with the company effective July 1, 1967.

—An increase from nine to 10 paid holidays per year, effective in 1968.

The following will be effective Sept. 1, 1967: —Establishment of a minimum pension benefit of $4.50 per month per year of creditable service.

—A reduction in eligibility age from 62 to 60 for early retirement, non-discounted pensions.

—Establishment of a widow's pension.

—An increase in the amount of life insurance for active employees, equaling approximately two times annual base pay, and a corresponding increase in accidental death and disability insurance coverage.

—An increase from $75 to $100 in the maximum weekly benefit for non-occupational disability.

—Substantial increases in hospital room rates under the Sylvania hospitalization policy and an increase from 120 to 180 days maximum hospitalization for any one period of disability.

—A 20 per cent increase in hospital maternity benefits.

—Increased or expanded outpatient emergency, x-ray and dependent coverage under the company hospital, surgical and medical program.

—A 100 percent increase in the maximum benefit allowances under Sylvania's major medical plan.

—Addition of an out-patient psychiatric care benefit under Sylvania's major medical plan.

Jamestown Briefs

Governor Nelson Rockefeller will land at Jamestown Municipal Airport at 11:45 a.m. Thursday. He is expected to reveal plans for extensive highway construction in the area at a meeting of Jamestown Kiwanis Club in the Hotel Jamestown.

Hearings on the proposed direct bus service will open at 10 a.m. Monday in the Jamestown Federal Building. The proposed shortline would be directed by Hudson Transit Lines Incorporated. Residents wishing to voice an opinion on the proposal should appear at the federal building Tuesday.

A $5,000 claim against Jamestown has been filed in behalf of Douglas Bush, 18, of R Price St., who served 40 days in jail before third degree burglary charges against him were dropped. A witness for the prosecution had repudiated a signed statement implicating the youth. Attorney John L. Goodell undertook the boy's case on April 21 later served notice on City Clerk Clinton H. Watson on the action. The lad had been released from jail last Friday.

A strike at Kling Factories Inc. in Mayville, N.Y. has become more spectacular as nine persons picketing have been arrested on charges of disorderly conduct. All have posted $50 bail after interfering with cars in a company lot.

Love Apples are Poisonous !

Love apples are poisonous! If you eat one you will die.

This was a fact believed and respected throughout the mid-1800's. And the mother who planted the plants in neat rows along the garden path to have the bright red of their fruit add beauty to dull green of other vegetable growth never failed to warn her youngsters, from the toddler to the teenager, of the danger.

Then, history tells us, a male resident of Youngville, Pa., in a moment of rare daring, ate a love apple. He didn't die, wasn't even nauseated.

Today, no one hesitates to bite into a big ripe tomato, and, if the reports of nutritional experts are to be accepted, we should be eating even more of them than we do.

This is progress.

But even today we find the same brand of "love apple" thinking hampering our progress in many fields.

One of these is evident in the attitude of some residents of the county as we move into an era of recreational development and the establishment of a "tourist" economy. An era that has already been responsible for a broadening of the county tax base and encouraging the establishment of new businesses.

Tourism, with its many side benefits, can contribute to the welfare of every county resident. In fact, it is our most available opportunity for economic advancement. And whatever benefits the economy, benefits the individual citizen.

We no longer live in the mid-1800's. And we no longer can afford to believe that love apples are poisonous. What every county citizen should do is examine the facts that are at hand, then bite deeply into the juicy red meat of "tourism" affluence.

Other communities have found the fruit highly appetizing.

ART BUCHWALD

Graffiti Is In

WASHINGTON — The graffiti craze (inscriptions or drawings scratched on pillars, buildings and walls), is now in full swing in this country. Many have been made into outposts, a practice which has not only furthered the art of graffiti, but has every one trying to outdo the others.

The magazine held a graffiti contest, as a promotional advertising agency personnel throughout the United States and these were some of the entries that were submitted.

"I dreamed I could wear a Made from brass" — Twiggy.

"Goodnight, David."

"Goodnight, Goliath."

"Hire the handicapped" — the Hadaway man.

"The Jolly Green Giant is a vegetable."

"Marshall McLuhan reads books."

"Xerox never comes up with anything original."

"Xerox never comes up with anything original."

"Drink Canada dry. Visit Expo '67."

"Do the Chinese look in the white pages?"

"Discourage ugly office buildings—play handball against the Pan Am Building."

"The Ajax White knight cheats at polo."

"Aunt Jemima is an Uncle Tom."

"Pail Mail can't spill."

"Smoley, the bear is a hairy boy scout."

While Time magazine has been concentrating on the advertising world, Washington has been working hard on its own graffiti. Liz Carpenter, Mrs. Johnson's press secretary, contributed several during a speech she gave at the Women's Press Club dinner, a club of:

"Boi by Kennedy is a rabbit."

"Secretary McNamara can't do New Math."

"Gov. Romney—would you buy a NEW car from his car?"

"Keep smiling with Joe Al. sop."

"Walter Lippman — God is not dead. He's alive & appears twice a week in the Washington Post."

A multiple sclerosis charity ball in Washington last week used graffiti as its theme and some of the signs said:

"Adam Clayton Powell uses Ma Ta"

"Courtney Veleit (Jack Veleit's daughter) is a nudist."

"J. Edgar Hoover sleeps with a night light."

"Richard Nixon is dead and living in New York."

One scratched out at the last moment was: "The governor of Alabama is a mother."

Other graffiti now making the rounds of Washington are:

"Sen. Dodd has never eaten a bad dinner."

"Impeach George Hamilton."

"Gei. Westmoreland come back — you forgot to salute Sen. Fulbright."

"George Wallace uses hair straightener."

"No, thank you, Dr. Coppolino, I've already had my slits."

"For Brotherhood Week—take your brother to lunch."

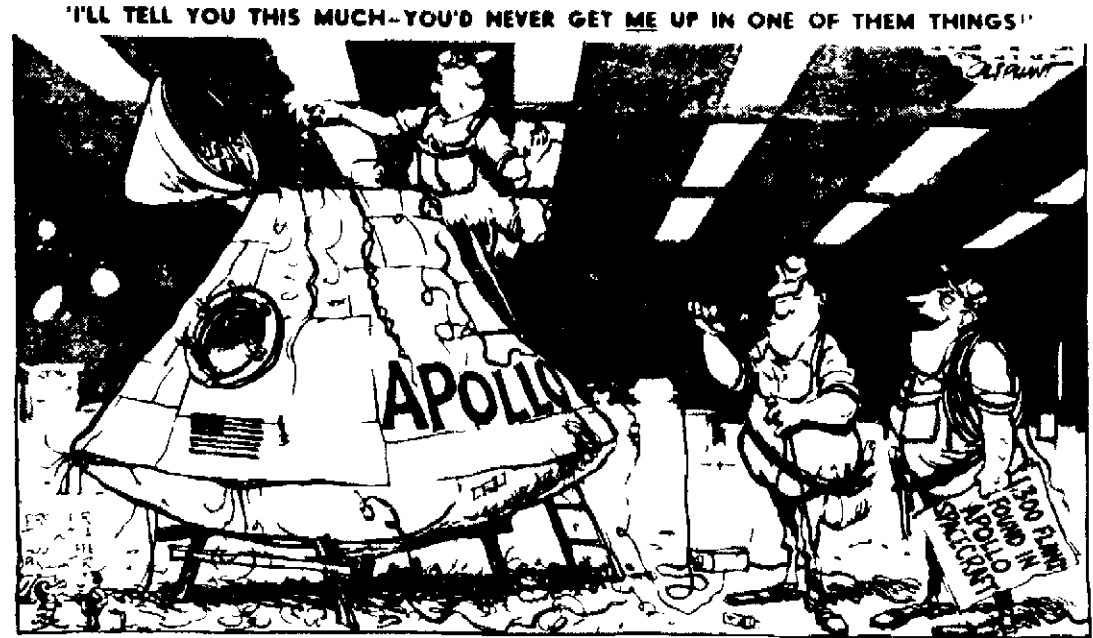

"Dean Rusk is a recorded announcement."

"Mrs. Johnson never waters the trees she plants."

"L.B.J. reads Walter Lippman under the bedcovers."

"The U.S. has the answer."

"What was the question?"

PEARSON & ANDERSON

Hate Peddlers at Lobby

WASHINGTON—A tall, severe-looking man, the creases of age showing in his harsh face, has moved into the Washington headquarters of the Liberty Lobby, where he suddenly has become absorbed in some secret and mysterious project.

He is Allen Zoll, one of the crusty veterans in the hate racket, who has been peddling anti-Semitism and fascism since the 1930's. In 1936, he founded the American Patriots, Inc., which was officially labeled "fascist" by the Justice Department.

Thereafter, he became associated with Gerald L. K. Smith, a notorious, anti-Semitic rabble-rouser. Now Zoll has formed an alliance with the Liberty Lobby, whose founder and leader, Willis Carto, is also fascist-minded. In private correspondence, Carto has called the defeat of Nazi Germany a tragedy for civilization and has advocated the shipment of all American Negroes to Africa.

Shortly after Zoll slipped into Washington and took up office space at the Liberty Lobby, another rump old man showed up for urgent, secret conferences.

He is oilman H. L. Hunt, a onetime barber who now makes an estimated $1 million a week and who lives in Dallas in what is supposed to be a replica of Mount Vernon. A sugar daddy for right-wing causes, he is bitterly opposed to government doles for everyone except oil millionaires. He has come out four-square for motherhood, God, and the 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance.

In a book called "Alpaca," ghost-written for him, Hunt has set forth his ideal government as one in which "the more taxes you pay, the more votes you get. . . If you accept state aid because you are poor or sick, you cannot vote at all, and you are denied an old-age pension."

Hunt has boasted to reporters that the book has been translated, partly by Jesuit priests, into half a dozen languages, including Mandarin and Vietnamese. Hunt sent copies to each delegate to South Vietnam's General Assembly, which has been trying to bring democracy to their embattled country.

Hunt, Zoll, Carto and Co. have been conferring in strict secrecy. The only one who has let out a peep about it is Hunt, who has said only that he is pushing an election-reform idea. He would like future Presidents to be elected by electors who would be selected by their constituencies, one from each Congressional district.

The Liberty Lobby, people, said Hunt, came to him for money, no doubt—though he didn't elaborate.

President Johnson called upon his Cabinet behind closed doors the other day to mobilize more pressure on Congress to pass his Great Society program.

He acknowledged that the increased Republican strength had made this Congress a "tough nut to crack," but complained that his Cabinet could push harder than they were doing. He said that friction between Congress and the President is inevitable toward the end of a term. Eventually Congress takes the measure of every President, he said, and he didn't expect to be an exception. He could speak from experience as a longtime Senator and Congressman.

Therefore, he urged his Cabinet officers to make an extra effort on Capitol Hill. Specifically he asked Postmaster General Larry O'Brien to give first priority to pushing key Great Society bills through Congress. He also asked Vice President Humphrey to assist. He particularly singled out bills on crime, education, model cities and rent supplements on which he wants action.

The Honored Dead

Is it really a good idea to use the ceremony of giving the Medal of Honor to the widow of a soldier killed in battle as the platform for dealing with the President's critics?

The President's remarks on Tuesday while conferring the medal posthumously on Marine Sgt. Peter S. Connor intended to stamp upon the public mind the notion that but for the dissenters Sgt. Connor would not have died.

The President should realize that this is playing it rough, that to degrade debate to this level is certainly to provoke the retort that Sgt. Connor did not die because Sen. J. W. Fulbright and Sen. George Aiken and the Council of Churches and some editors and some columnists and some students were against the President's conduct of the war.

Sgt. Connor died in a military operation conducted under the orders of President Johnson. The obvious rebuttal to the President's use of the heroes is that if Mr. Johnson remained true to the policy on which he was elected, if he had followed the advice of his critics to negotiate and not to escalate, Sgt. Connor would be alive today.

Let us not drag the honored dead into the domestic debate. Let the dead rest with honor and in peace.

The President has told us that he believes in the right of dissent and equally in the right to answer the dissent. Has any sane person ever argued that the President had no right to answer his critics?

What the critics want above all are candid answers to the troublesome questions. What is argued by some and is felt by many more is that instead of answering his critics the President is evading the issues by stirring up a cloud of patriotic emotion.

The exploitation of the dead heroes is a flagrant example of this. The exploitation of Gen. William Westmoreland, who as a representative of the troops cannot be attacked, is another example. The President does not even pretend to argue the administration case. He merely asserts it in large, hot, question-begging generalities.

Lippmann

If the undeniable right to answer dissent is to be exercised usefully and with dignity, the answer must be addressed to the best-informed and most responsible critics. It is, of course, a temptation to ignore Sen. Fulbright and Sen. George McGovern and Sen. Aiken and the staff report of the Republican Policy Committee and to focus attention upon the fringe, upon the draft card burners and the flag burners and the beatniks and their posters.

Gen. Westmoreland said on his return to Saigon that he used the word "unpatriotic" to apply to those who burned the flag. The general should learn not to play with matches around a powder keg.

Nor does it affect the real issue of the debate that Sen. Everett Dirksen comes out of the hospital to pledge Republican support to the Commander-in-Chief, for everybody knows that Sen. Dirksen will do everything in his power to prevent Mr. Johnson from being re-elected. It is most probable that this is all that Ho Chi Minh hopes for from the mounting dissent in this country.

Indeed, whatever the Republicans may be saying now, the President is on a course which will cause the Republican Party to present itself as an alternative to another Johnson administration.

It is reasonably certain that the President has enlarged the war and has enlarged his war aims to a point where he can no longer hold the confidence either of the hawks or the doves.

The President has reached a point, as Sen. Aiken has just said, when "the present administration cannot achieve an honorable peace in Vietnam."

It is a previous predicament for the country and also for the Democratic Party. But that is where the President has brought us.

And because this is a country where there are free elections, it is hard to imagine that the Republican candidate will take a me-too stand, that he will insist that he is more Johnsonian than Mr. Johnson, that the Republican candidate will not take advantage of the present fact that he is the alternative to Mr. Johnson.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, THE WARREN TIMES MIRROR AND OBSERVER:

As a long-time amateur student of government, a background deepened by 16 legislative years in Harrisburg, may I set forth some thoughts upon the ninth question which will appear on the May 16 ballot. The convening of a limited-scope convention to revise the Commonwealth's Constitution.

But first, may I preface these thoughts by stating that I do indeed advocate a sizeable forward step in further amending the State Constitution, in certain strategic sectors, notably to remove provisions which now stand in the way of more effective minor-judiciary and local-government performances.

My difference with many who favor a "yes" vote is simply one of method, not objective.

I suggest that the convening of a limited-scope constitutional convention, in lieu of the amending procedure already built into the Constitution, reflects, across the broad perspective of current history, the placement of too great a weight upon the promptings of haste.

I hold that it has been demonstrated amply, in America that changes essential to keeping in being a progressive government actually do evolve from within the democratic processes, and under extant constitutional patterns, Federal and State. Continuing issues break through, constitutionally, to viable solutions.

stitutional convention should be held, it could become the forerunner for subsequent conventions.

In short, the limited-scope constitutional convention could serve to supersede the more difficult, existing amending procedure. . . for the future, an erosion of restraint upon mass emotionalism bent upon overriding the counsels of reasoned judgment.

Apropos "the more difficult . . . procedure," the late Judge Learned Hand, truly one of the great minds of this 20th century America, declared: "Constitutions are deliberately made difficult of amendment."

Kepler Davis

Editor Warren Times-Mirror & Observer, Warren, Pennsylvania

Dear Sir:

It has been brought to my attention that one of the reasons that a Constitutional Convention is necessary at this time is that Magistrates and Justice of the Peace are dividing fees with arresting officers and that the offices of Justice of the Peace should be abolished.

Section 1208, sub-section C, Act 32, P.L. 38, 1959 of the Vehicle Code of Pennsylvania covers situations of this dividing of fees thoroughly, reads as follows:

"The Magistrate shall not divide fees of his office with any peace officer, or with any person who may assist in making an arrest, or furnish evidence in any case arising under this Act. PENALTY: Any magistrate violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor in office, and upon conviction thereof in a court of quarter sessions, shall be sentenced to pay a fine of five hundred dollars, ($500.00) and cost of prosecution, or undergo imprisonment of not more than sixty (60) days, or suffer both such fine and imprisonment."

In Warren County, I am certain that no peace officer or Justice of the Peace would even consider the dividing of fees and jeopardize his position in the County sworn to uphold the laws of the Commonwealth.

If person or persons starting such rumors of any Magistrate dividing fees with any peace officer in violation of the above quoted law, I am certain that if the office of the District Attorney, would be contacted supplying names of magistrates violating the provisions of this Act, the offender would be brought before the court of quarter sessions to answer such charges.

If such rumors are groundless and cannot be proven, and unless a better reason for holding a Constitutional Convention can be furnished, I believe that a NO VOTE should be considered for the proposed Constitutional Convention.

Sincerely yours,

A Warren County Justice of the Peace

Respectfully submitted

Raymond F. Gilmore

Editor, THE WARREN TIMES MIRROR AND OBSERVER:

Specifically, in Pennsylvania, during recent years an impressive number of needed changes, by piecemeal amendment, either have been made, or else are well on the way, to bring the State Constitution abreast of basic developments in society, to remove details irrelevant to a central and fundamental document of supreme law. These constitutional adjustments have been the product of popular pressures. Changes still needed, as in the fields of minor judiciary and local government, are the goals of intelligently organized drives which, I believe, eventually will prevail through the steps, already established, for amending the Constitution.

Adherence to the long road of change by amendment, in lieu of a quick by-pass via a constitutional convention, as I see it, lies in the direction of safeguarding the stability of government.

Parenthetically, stability of government, it seems to me, is a blessing which we appear prone to take for granted, despite these post-mid-century days marked by major incidents of rising mob violence, and by organized demonstrations aimed at contempt for constituted authority by the blind, uncomprehending swarms, as well as pawns, of subversion.

In fact, there are disturbing indications that we are becoming too accustomed, even hardened, to the prospects, be it on campus, in clerical garb, among groups carrying banners of devoted purpose, even along the aisles of the U.S. Senate, and within various other groupings in the American social fabric, wherein patriotism has been transformed into a hybrid, crossed with what impresses me as less noble and less vital values.

Dear Editor:

I hope every time a plane goes over that the citizens of Warren County will look up. Look up and be appreciative of the fact that we in Warren County are not isolated from the rest of the world.

Just a few more Commissioners who believe that yesterday is more important than tomorrow and we won't see planes in our sky. If the Bradford Regional Airport is not improved, it won't be long until all flights will be canceled and air transportation will really belong to yesterday as far as Warren Countians are concerned.

We've complained because they didn't build roads while they built the dam. Now we have the opportunity to build the airport while we're building the recreational facilities. Commissioners who can not see into tomorrow should not be seeking re-election. They should retire.

HARRISBURG — Governor Shafer is practicing politics in a fashion—and with the kind of persuasiveness — that hasn't been seen here since Harvey Taylor's days as Pennsylvania's Republican Chairman. As a consequence, the lines are already crystallizing for a ticket in 1968—that will be headed by former Gov. William Scranton for U.S. Senator.

The stalling horse for Scranton is John K. Tabor, the secretary of Labor and Industry whose next term will come in the gubernatorial election three years hence. It's Tabor's job to parry the threat of Congressman Richard Schultz Schweiker, the fast-moving, just-talking young man for the improbable locality of Shippack Pike in Montgomery County.

Meanwhile, the tuneable for Bill Scranton—who continues to profess his non-availability—calls for forays into foreign lands. Scranton will make whirlwind forays into foreign burg to pick up well-prepared, high-level assignments in behalf of the Shafer Administration. At each opportunity, he will press forward with his views of world-wide problems. All of this is being stage-managed by William Keislung, who served as Number One in the Scranton Administration and now heads a private public relations office across the street from the Governor's windows.

The test of Gov. Scranton's effectiveness, with the party chieftains came last week as Republican County chairmen gathered here for a showdown of support for the May 16 balloting on a Constitutional Convention. All too casually, they took turns pressing close to Scranton, and one comment dominated all others. "Just say the word," more than a score of the chairmen told him. Personable and charismatic, Bill Scranton, more than anything has the aura of a winner; and county chairmen like nothing so much as a fast horse.

Meanwhile, the manager of the Schweiker boom—outside the Congressman himself—is an old wheelhorse of power politics, J. Warren Bullen, the Montgomery County Republican chairman. To impress his will on Harrisburg, Bullen has drafted an imposing four-county bloc that includes the county chairmen from his neighboring bedroom counties of Bucks, Chester and Delaware. It operates as a loose entente in the Legislature, a d. ideally, numbers seven Republican Senators and 27 House members.

Far from complaining, the Shafer Administration keeps a smile on its face when forced to deal with this entente. But information about the bloc was carefully sifted into Democratic circles and it was a Democratic legislator from Bucks County who rose to chastise the Republican renegades. "If they are serious about doing good for the suburbs," said Rep. Milton Berkes, "then they ought to include Democrats on the team."

Win, or lose on the Constitutional issue, Gov. Shafer has used the issue to bring virtually all other county chairmen into a close, working alliance.

Views On Airport

We have seen a number of articles lately in the Warren Times-Mirror and Observer dealing with Warren's airport dilemma. Although these articles were written by responsible people they dealt with only certain facts, they did not give the reader who is unfamiliar with airports and air-planes enough background to honestly evaluate the problems which Warren now faces. The pilots and aircraft owners of Warren recognize their responsibility to the community, and take this opportunity to present the flying facts.

1. U.S. Civil Aircraft Production:

As of December 31, 1966 there were 107,010 active general aviation aircraft, and 1,976 airline aircraft. The most interesting fact here is that the aircraft industry produced 25 per cent more general aviation aircraft this year than it did in 1965. However, the number of active airline aircraft has not changed appreciably in the last 10 years.

2. Hours flown:

General aviation aircraft flew 2.7 billion miles in 17.4 million hours in 1966, which represents an increase of 30 per cent in the last six years. Fatal accidents in 1966 was 0.20 per million miles. This represents one fatality every five million miles.

In the general aviation fleet, business flying was the busiest segment accounting for nearly one-half of the general aviation miles, and one-third the flight hours.

Flying for pleasure and personal transportation was the second busiest segment with commercial flying (air taxi and aerial application) holding down third, followed by instructional flying (flight instruction) fourth.

3. Active Airman Certificates:

The FAA issued 211,153 private pilot licenses in 1966 which represents an increase of 25 per cent over 1965.

4. General Aviation Aircraft Sales:

The general aviation industry sold 512 aircraft dollars worth of new aircraft in 1966. During this period the industry employment figure rose 11 per cent, representing approximately 1.4 million jobs.

5. Aircraft Movements:

The United States now has 9,400 airports. Of this total 303 have FAA Control towers. In 1965, at the 303 controlled airports general aviation accounted for 75 per cent or 45.1 million movements, and that's just at 3.2 per cent of the country's airports. In comparison the airlines accounted for 18 per cent and the military 7 per cent.

These are the simple facts of the general aviation fleet. The FAA predicts that this is only the beginning. They estimate that in 1975 the general aviation fleet will be 80 per cent larger and 90 per cent busier than in 1964. The U.S. Government foresaw the potential of this movement, and quickly set up the Federal Air Airport program. Government funds were set aside to be used to help assist local communities in building new or improving existing airports. Local examples of this program in which the communities received state and federal aid are Corry, Titusville, Meadville, Greenville, Erie, Franklin, Jamestown, and Bradford. President Johnson recently released another several million dollars for this purpose. The money is available, but you must apply for it. Let us now return to Warren's dilemma. The new route six by-pass is supposed to cut through the airport property, and if it does Warren will no longer have a general aviation facility.

This would mean that company owned aircraft belonging to: Cooper Bessmer Co.—Mt. Vernon, Ohio; Cherne Contracting Corp., Ironwood, Mich.; Beerman Bros., Dakota City, Neb.; Chicago Bridge and Iron, Birmingham, Ala.; Westinghouse Elec., Pittsburgh, Pa.; U.S. Forestry Service; James Drilling Co., Blairsville, Pa.; Cannon, Thiele Betz and Cannon, Amherst, N.Y.; Coyne Laundry, Syracuse, N.Y.; Keystone Construction, Meadville, Pa.; Berg Electronics, Harrisburg, Pa.; U.S. Army Engineers, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Commonwealth of Pa., Harrisburg, Pa.; Mid-American Supply, Blairsville, Pa.; Ceyon Construction Co., White Plains, N.Y.; Penn. Erie Mfg. Co., Erie, Pa.; Ingersoll-Rand, Easton, Pa.; Goodwin Hydrodynamics, Inc., Lacombe, N.J.; IBM, Kingston, N.Y.; Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Philadelphia, Pa. which now regularly use our airport, will have to land at Jamestown or Bradford if they wish to continue to do business in Warren. Here we must point out that corporations, companies or individuals who invest in an aircraft, do so because it can save them many valuable hours of commuting time. To lose this time advantage by having to land at airports remote (not over 30 min. to the center of town) to their intended port of call could very well mean cancellations of that call.

Ex-governor C. E. Sanders of Georgia is an excellent example of what a foresighted governor can do for a state. He feels the whole future of the state, nation, and world is tied to air and to space. Between 1965-1966 his airport development program built 33 community airports. These were general aviation airports, hard-surfaced, and lighted for night operation, to provide the community with an airport directly adjacent to the town.

Warren now has an excellent opportunity to provide itself with a borough (or county) airport free of charge. How can this be accomplished? Very easily in fact. The borough has been offered $100,000 for the airport property by a local redevelopment group. An impartial land appraisal firm estimated the worth of the 90 plus lots (excluding the playground) at a conservative $180,000! This value could be realized from the sale of this land no matter who is the ultimate purchaser.

If this money was set aside for the development of a new airport, Warren could get State and Federal Aid (our own tax dollars) amounting to $540,000. (Matching funds available from this State and double from the Federal Government). This would provide Warren with $720,000 to build an airport that would be a very definite asset to this community. An airport which would attract an airport operator, and permit Warren companies who own twin engine aircraft to base their planes here in Warren. This airport would consist of two hard-surfaced runways, 100' by 3500' long running East-West, and North-South. A pilots' lounge with restrooms, and a telephone is required. Any other building could be privately financed if necessary. Why Warren would want to let an opportunity such as this slip by when the community is suffering from inadequate road facilities and no railroad facilities is hard to imagine.

Dow Averages Soar to 905+

(C) N.Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — The stock market yesterday made its third successive advance. But volume on the New York Stock Exchange fell to 10.63 million shares from 12.55 Thursday. Railroad stocks were strong. The Dow Jones index of 20 rails rose 3.72 points or 1.6 per cent for a 1967 high of 235.57. The highest previous close this year was 235.17 on March 17.

The Dow Jones industrial index rose 4.01 to 905.96. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index added 0.12 point and closed at a record 94.44. Standard and Poor's railroad index was up 0.8 to finish the day at 46.69.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index closed at 51.85 with a gain of 0.05. The New York Times combined average of 50 industrial and railroad stocks was up 0.69 to 537.37.

Of the 1,465 issues traded, 649 advanced, 589 were down. New highs for 1967 numbered 173, four issues set new lows.

The American Stock Exchange rounded out a lively week with a modest advance in prices. The index rose 2 cents to $18.62. Of 931 issues traded 370 moved ahead and 532 lost ground. Volume slackened to 4,439,040 compared with Thursday's 5,373,885.

The over-the-counter market showed moderate gains despite evidence of profit-taking.

On the big board, 11 of the 15 most-active issues advanced. Mobil was unchanged, and only Mack Truck, Brunswick and McDonnell were off.

Trading in the most active issue, American Motors, was 343,000 shares, nearly twice the volume of 183,100 shares posted by McDonnell, the second on the list.

American added 1/4 and closed at 11 1/2, probably because of recent reports that more than one company has considered a bid to acquire the automotive company.

Sperry Rand, the third most-active issue, was up 1 1/2 to 33 1/2. A block of 585,600 shares of Sperry—the largest single block, in terms of the number of shares, ever traded on the New York Stock Exchange—had crossed the tape Thursday at 30 3/4.

Mack Truck lost 1 1/4 and closed at 52 1/2, as it ran into profit-taking. It had added 7 1/2 points on Thursday, after an announcement that it would be acquired by Signal Oil and Gas.

The New York Times average of 25 railroad issues gained 1.49 to 137.72. The sharpest increase was Illinois Central which was up 4 points to 38 3/4. The New York Central closed at 70 1/2 for a gain of 2 1/2. Pennsylvania was up 2 1/2 to 57 1/2, while the Atlantic Coast Line tacked on 2 1/2 and closed at $2 1/2. The Chicago and North

High Cost Of Alcohol Up Again

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state Liquor Control, for the second time in two months, has raised prices in state liquor stores. The latest increases apply primarily to wines.

The unannounced price hikes took effect May 1 covering some 70 items and range generally between two and four cents.

The latest price increases were unrelated to a $3 million hike granted last March 1 because of a New York state law which prohibited dealers from selling at lower prices in other states, board officials said.

The law resulted in most liquor manufacturers raising their prices in Pennsylvania and other price-control states.

Prices also were increased on a few bourbon, gin, brandy and champagne brands in the latest round.

Increases on fifths of bourbon included: 26 cents to $5.17 for Hunter's Blend; 23 cents to $5.50 for J. W. Dant; 12 cents to $5.22 for Old Mr. Boston. St. Remy French Brandy was jumped by 47 cents to $5.77, while Nicholson's Lamplighter English Gin went up 12 cents to $6.16.

OBSERVATIONS . . . by Bob Walsh

THE ISSUES

MANPOWER

Warren county cannot prosper without its industries, and its industries cannot continue without qualified personnel. To attract and hold personnel and to make its work efficient we must have a progressive county. Major categories in that progressiveness follow.

HOUSING

The current key to personnel is housing. The commissioners should do everything possible to encourage the provision of good housing for all levels of the economy. This ranges from homes for top personnel, which will be the brainpower of our industry, to the elderly whose care is our responsibility and whose present homes can be used for families if enough of the older citizens prefer to live in more compact cottages or apartments.

The housing shortage also deters community improvement. We cannot move hundreds of people from their homes to make room for urban changes if we have no place for them to live. Thus urban renewal in most cases is greatly dependent upon a housing program.

AIRPORT

We cannot have a thriving county without modern air travel. Teaming with Jamestown is too expensive, and probably unrealistic. The Mt. Alton port probably will be our regional field and if we want federal help this must be it. But we should demand a name for the port that suits all concerned, and we should receive financial help for a local port as a part of the bargain.

THE TREND IS GROWING

JCC Using Television

The magic eye of television has found its way into the classrooms at Jamestown Community College.

The electronic medium, which has been a boon in many fields of education, was recently utilized in the technical physics and other technological courses on an experimental basis. According to Reverdy Baldwin, assistant professor of physics at JCC, the use of the magical tube will be used at every opportunity in order to improve instruction.

Prof. Baldwin noted there are many advantages in using the circuit especially in projecting small or minute experiments on a screen so that large numbers of students can see a particular reaction and "not just take the instructor's word" that something is really happening. Being able to focus the camera on a voltmeter reading as the tiny current makes it register, is one example of the varied use of such an instrument. As the results are readily visible via the television receiver, the instructor has a more confident control of a particular experiment, the instructor explained.

"We use this in every physics course where we see an opportunity to make instruction effective. This is the latest trend in education."

An experiment being conducted in one room can be seen in several other rooms via the cable hookup.

Jerome E. Erickson, an instructor on the engineering faculty, has used the setup to great advantage in his classes.

Prof. Marion A. Panzarella, Chairman of the Mathematics, Physics, Engineering and Technology Division pointed out that the College at present has two television cameras, three monitors, screens, videoprojector valued at about $12,000. Prof. Panzarella said the College has had the equipment since the first of the year and is constantly utilizing it in the classroom.

Funds for the equipment were furnished under the Vocational Education Act of 1963 as a request for a vocational education project.

As Prof. Baldwin put it "we are constantly experimenting and innovating trying to keep our programs up to date. This use of the television camera is one tool that helps us do the job."

BOB WALSH, former editor of the Warren County Observer, is a Republican candidate for Warren County Commissioner. (No 4 on the ballot.)

But until the new method is resolved I favor the use of federal funds whenever we have a project for which part of our income tax dollar was budgeted. We paid it. We deserve its return if it is needed.

I do not think we should engage in projects just to obtain such funds. The exception might be a heavy unemployment situation and the possibility of providing work on a facility not of prime importance but useful.

Let us not forget that the young men who have inherited local plants have done us a great favor by continuing to be active in the management of these businesses. This keeps the plants localized. But the take is not as flush as in the days when their fathers and grandfathers were not paying large shares of the profits to Washington.

Today it may be more difficult to obtain contributions from the plants. If so, perhaps we should note that about fifty per cent of the corporation profits have gone to Washington, and a large share of the personal incomes have followed. Thus when we obtain $400,000 for an airport it is not a gift. It has been paid many times over by our own share of the federal income tax.

Apparently if we want the use of this money we must take the necessary steps to get our proportional slice of the dollar back.

It is true that you seldom get something for nothing.

But why not get something for our something?

RAIN MAY MAR 93rd RUNNING

Damascus Picked in Today's Derby

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—All was calm on the backstretch at Churchill Downs yesterday where 14 highly strung 3-year-old thoroughbreds awaited today's run for riches and roses in the 93rd Kentucky Derby. However, there were rumblings of discontent elsewhere in this horse-minded city as advocates of an open housing ordinance posed a threat to the smooth running of America's No. 1 horse race spectacle.

Here were the developments on the backstretch as city, national and state officials checked their plans to break up any disturbances that might interfere with the $162,200 1 1/4-mile race with victory worth $119,700.

Patrice Jacobs' California Derby winner Reason to Hail turned up with a slight case of the hives. However, trainer Hirsch Jacobs, father of the colt's owner was not too concerned.

"It's nothing serious," said the popular red-headed trainer who has saddled more winners than any other trainer in history. "He's had it before and it goes down just as quickly as it comes up. You'll recall Exhibitionist had the same ailment last year before the Derby."

Damascus, the 2-1 favorite to win the major share of the purse, the coveted gold trophy and the blanket of red roses, worked three-eighths of a mile in 35 3/5 seconds and trainer Frank Whiteley Jr. said the son of Sword Dancer was ready for the supreme test. Damascus will carry the famous white and red dot silks, which have been borne by three Derby winners — Gallant Fox, Omaha and Johnstown. He is owned jointly by Mrs. William Woodward Sr., widow of the founder of the belair Stud, and her daughter Mrs. Edith Bancroft. Mrs. Woodward, 84, was scheduled to be present.

Successor, with trainer Eddie Neely remembering how badly the colt broke from the starting gate in the recent Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland, worked from the gate in an unusual day before the Derby prep. The son of Bold Ruler clipped off three-eighths of a mile in 33 3/5 seconds. Neely was satisfied.

Ruben, the 7-2 second choice, took things easy but trainer Clyde Turk said the big son of Nas-vita, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, would be out early today for an easy gallop of one mile. Even though the Cali-formian is a slow starter, Turk expressed satisfaction over the No. 1 post position. Damascus will start from No. 2.

Fraud Clarion, quoted at 15-1 in the pre-race odds compiled by the track handicapper, blew out three-eighths of one mile in 35 seconds and eased up the half-mile in 49. "Very nice," said trainer Loyd Gentry.

Louisiana Derby winner Ask the Fare also worked three-eighths but trainer Jere Smith was unable to catch the time for the entire distance. He did clock his colt in 25 seconds for the last quarter.

Dr. Isby, who'll have Bill Hartback board in quest of his fifth derby triumph, also worked three-eighths in 35 seconds and 79-year-old trainer, Frank Childs said "it was fine."

All of the others confined their day's activities to gallops or walks around the shed. They were Diplomat Way, Dawn Glory, Field Master, Gentleman James, Lightning Orphan, Barbs Delight and Second Encounter.

Riding assignments were finally completed with trainer Hal Steele Jr. announcing that Kenny Knapp will be aboard Derby Trial winner Barbs Delight and trainer Ted Cleveland placing Billy Phelps on Second Encounter, a rank outsider purchased early in the week by Nieson Harris and Joe Pierce for $30,000.

All 14 are expected to be in the line-up for the 5:30 p.m. EDT start although there is a prospect of an off track. The weatherman says there is a 40 per cent chance of rain. The race will be carried on nationwide television by CBS from 5-6 p.m. EDT and by CBS radio from 5:15-4:45.

While the horsemen went quietly about the last minute tasks of preparing for the colorful race before an expected crowd of 100,000, there were more and more reports that advocates of open housing would attempt to disrupt the running of the race.

In the latest development, two of the three bands withdrew yesterday. Only the University of Louisville band will be on hand and its director has asked for guards.

The Louisville Male High School band withdrew after Ray Boesser, its director, had received threats in an anonymous telephone call. The same decision was made by the Lincoln High School band of Vincennes, Ind.

Boesser said the telephone caller told him, "If you show up at the Derby, your life will be in danger—and you can tell the other band directors the same holds true for them." Male's band is integrated, as is the University of Louisville organization.

To thwart any interference with the race, the security forces have been beefed up with the total force of guards expected to exceed 1,000.

Villanova Sweeps Distance Relay Events at Quantico

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Villanova's crack distance runners swept the boards yesterday in the 11th annual Quantico Relays as Charlie Messenger and Dave Patrick anchored the Wildcats to record-breaking victories in the distance medley and four-mile relays.

Messenger held off a belated bid by Fordham's Jack Fath, running the last mile in 4:06.1, as the Wildcats were clocked in 9:47.6 in the distance medley. The old mark was 9:51 set by Villanova in 1960.

Ahead by at least 50 yards as he took the baton for the last mile in the four-mile relay, Patrick finished 175 yards in front as Villanova turned the distance in 16:51, clipping five seconds off the record set last year by the Quantico Marines, who were second yesterday.

The fastest leg was the third, run by Frank Murphy in 4:09.4. Patrick was timed in 4:10.2, Tom Donnelly in 4:13.4 on the second leg and Messenger in 4:18 as the lead-off runner.

The first three distance medley teams finished under the old mark. Fordham was timed in 9:48.2 as Fath ran a 4:04.8 mile, and third-place Georgetown finished in 9:49.8.

Villanova's other runners were Al McCafferty's 1:53.3 for the 880, Bill Heidelberg, 0:48.1 for the 440, and Craig Nation, 3:00.1, for the three-quarter-mile leg.

Benedict Cayenne of Maryland State lowered the record twice in the open 880-yard run. He was clocked in 1:52.1 in the morning qualifying, then won the event in the afternoon in 1:50.7.

Records were set in trials of both women's events. A Tennessee State quartet of Diana Wilson, Mattilene Renter, Marcela Daniel and Madeline Manning ran the 440 relay in 46.7 seconds, while American record-holder Charlotte Cook of Washington, D.C., set a mark of 2:08.7 in the 880.

Richmond Flowers, Tennessee's sophomore dash, put in a surprise appearance and led qualifying for today's semifinals in the 120-high hurdles with an unextended 14-second clocking. He also earned a berth in the 100-yard dash semifinals in 9.8.

British West Indies star Ed Roberts of the Baltimore Olympic Club, the winner here the last two years while running for North Carolina College, also was caught in 9.8 in the 100. Other semifinalists include Olympian Mel Pender of the U.S. Army and Penn Relays winner Clarence Rah of Kentucky State.

Russ Rogers of New York's Grand Street Boys club won the 440 hurdles in 51.4 when defending champion Leon Coleman of Winston-Salem failed to show up. Olympian Jay Luck of the New Haven Track club, the winner here in 1964 and 1965, finished fourth.

Defending champion Kentucky State was clocked in 1:26.8 in qualifying for the 880-yard relay. Other teams moving into today's finals were Central Connecticut, Villanova, St. John's and Morgan State.

WF&S Club Sponsoring Field Trip

The Warren Field and Stream Club will again sponsor the field trip for the conservation classes at Warren Area High School. The trip is an annual affair following the completion of the course.

The class is an elective 1/2 credit course for high school seniors and is taught by John Redicli. The object is to develop a conservation attitude in the younger generation and covers soil, forestry, private applications, water and wild life.

This year's outing will begin Monday morning at 8:30 from VAHS by charter bus. First stop will be the Warren Water company. From there they will stop at the Sewage Disposal Plant, see cooperative tree farming and the Peterson farm. From there, Larry Stotz, Sheffield ranger, takes them to the Farnsworth area, then to a timber sale and on to Heart's Content for lunch.

Robert Ache of the Forest and Water department will discuss virgin timber and fire protection. Game Commission Officer Dave Titus will show game food plots near Sandstone Springs. If time permits the group will go to the Bualoons Research and Development Center.

Jack Skinner, president of the Warren Field and Stream Club said that there is room on the bus if any members of the club would like to join the tour.

Palmer Hot, Leads by 3 At Houston

By RONALD THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Masterful Arnold Palmer birdied five of the last seven holes yesterday on his way to a five-under-par 65 that thrust him into a three-stroke lead at the halfway point of the $115,000 Champions International Golf Tournament.

Palmer, who fired a 68 in the first round, was eight under par with a 36-hole total of 134. Young Frank Beard, who shared the lead going into the day's round with lanky George Archer and Dan Sikes, landed alone in second with a 70, for 137.

In a drastic move by tournament officials, three of the game's top players, Jack Nicklaus, PGA champion Al Geiberger and former U.S. Open winner Gary Middlecoff, playing in a threesome, suffered a two-stroke penalty for slow play. The penalty, invoked by tournament director Jack Tunhill, took the edge off a 69 Nicklaus had fashioned to counter a spiraling 77 in the first round. His 148 was barely enough to escape the cut, limiting play in the final two rounds to the top 70.

This was the first time PGA officials had slapped a penalty against an entire threesome. Normally, such a move is limited to a single contestant.

Most of the pros, including Palmer, felt the problem was the result of poor pairings. "It's just an unfortunate pairing when you've got two pretty slow players in a group (Nicklaus and Middlecoff) and Geiberger, who is no speed demon," Palmer said.

Northerns, Walleyes, Muskies Now Among the Legal Catches

At 12:01 a.m. this morning northerns, muskies, and walleyes became legal prize for the hundreds of area and visiting fishermen who will take to the river and its tributaries today as the season opens.

Water conditions are excellent due to limited rainfall, but temperatures will be below the usual opening day ranges because of the persistent cold weather over the past week.

It can be expected that most of the action will be centered in and around the tailwaters of the Kinzua Dam where outstanding catches of these species have been made in the past. However, there is a chance that the high level of water within the reservoir will hold temperatures of the discharge waters at a level even lower than will be found on the sections of the river further downstream.

If this is the case, some of the best fishing may be had on the river below the Conewango or even the Brokenstraw due to warmer temperatures of these tributaries. Fishing pressure on northerns and walleyes will be heavy on these tributaries as both have been highly productive streams over the past few years. The Conewango, especially, has been gaining a well-earned reputation as a great northern producer and will undoubtedly attract its share of roibenders in the vicinity of the Akeley Bridge.

Pike fishing on the Brokenstraw will be limited to the upper sections in the Columbus area.

On the river below Warren, the sections most likely to get attention from the anglers will be in the Starbuck portion, at Buckaloons, and Thompson Eddy. The highly popular eddys in and around Tidouette, constituting some of the finest fishing waters in the state for the species legal today, will undoubtedly attract the hordes of fishermen they do every season.

Bass, too, large and smallmouth, are not legal today. The season on the bronzebacks opens June 17 and, like the seasons on the three legal species, continues until March 14, 1968.

The legal limit on walleyes (over 15 inches) is six; on muskellunge (over 30 inches) two, and on northerns (over 20 inches) six in Erie, Crawford, Warren, Venango, Forest, Mercer, Lawrence, Butler, Clarion and Jefferson counties. On other waters of the state the limit is 2 with a minimum length of 24 inches.

Opinions of fishermen differ on the potential of today's fishing. Some think the colder temperatures will make the fish sluggish and decrease the activity, others feel that the action will be every bit as good as on the average opening day.

Live bait is expected to produce the best results, but artificials will be favored by many fishermen, especially spoons and jugs. Whether the fish will be feeding in the deep pools or in the shallow riffles is anybody's guess.

Erie's Mike McCoy Ready To Crack Irish Lineup

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Two rusty Heisman Trophy winners, Leon Hart and Johnny Lattner, will be in the starting Old Timer line-up against Notre Dame's varsity in today's windup of the Fighting Irish spring football drills.

Hart, huge end who starred for the Detroit Lions after winning the Heisman Trophy in 1949, and halfback Lattner, 1953 winner of the award to the nation's top collegiate footballer, are expected to make only token appearances.

After the first few minutes of the contest, the Old Timers mainly will consist of graduating stars from last year's national champion Irish and current squad members.

However, returning among 20 lettermen are a pair of exceptional quarterbacks, Terry Hanratty and Coley O'Brien, and a brilliant pass receiver in split end Jim Seymour.

Defensively, the spotlight will be on several huge sophomores to be counted upon to plug the front four where only Keven Hardy, 270-pound tackle, returns next fall.

They include Mike McCoy, 6-foot-5, 270-pound tackle, and Jay Zizewski, 6-7, 250-pound end. The starting Irish backfield will be Hanratty at quarterback, Bob Bleier and Dan Harshman at halfbacks, and Ron Dushney at fullback.

The Old Timer backfield will have George Izo, 1959 quarterback, Nick Eddy, 1966 All-American, and Red Mack of 1960, at halfbacks and another 1966 star, Larry Conjar at fullback.

The game will be televised nationally. (ABC at 4 p.m. EST).

Coach Ara Parseghian, starting his fourth Irish season, must rebuild considerably after the graduation loss of some 10 standouts from the offensive and defensive units which carried Notre Dame to nine victories and a controversial 10-10 tie with Michigan State last year.

Find the Strength to Worship Together

The Pursuit of Happiness

By HAROLD G. POWELL
First Church of God

And they lived happily ever after. So ends many a fairy tale. However, we quickly add: "That may be all right for a prince and princess, but the rest of us have to face up to the realities of life!" Thus our commentary on life presupposes that happiness is intended for children and characters in the world of make-believe only. Reality and happiness seem contrary to one another.

Nothing could be further from the truth! For if we could only accept it, it is in facing reality in life that true happiness becomes a possibility. Happiness is not a luxury reserved for a fortunate few. Happiness, rightly understood, is available to all.

A recent magazine article on happiness began with the rather negative statement: "Nothing renders happiness less approachable than trying to find it." But the thought has a rather familiar ring to it! I think Jesus was speaking of happiness in a sense when he reminded his listeners that the person who seeks to find his life by selfishly pursuing it will fail in his search, but he who surrenders his life to Christ will truly find it.

The word happiness has many fuzzy definitions. It is often related to an escape from life's realities. It is often thought of in terms of a "good time" or a "good feeling." Happiness and laughter, in the minds of many, are inseparable.

Americans often confuse thrills or excitement with happiness. If we are unhappy, we seek to alleviate that unhappiness with a new thrill or increased excitement. Happiness is not the result of a selfish attempt to feel good. True happiness is more closely related to a sense of well-being, an awareness that one has a worthwhile purpose for existence.

Happiness, wrongly pursued, often involves an over-emphasis on the material things of life. Such is the case in our society. So often we approach the attitude of the "Peanuts" comic strip character who thinks of happiness as a double-dip ice-cream cone. We have become a nation of "eternal consumers" who think our every need can be met by taking something in. Everything, including sex, cigarettes, and alcohol are consumed in vast quantities in an attempt to satisfy an inner craving. But to quote the Apostle Paul out of context: "There is a more excellent way!"

Rev. Harold Powell

Jesus described this longing in terms of a physical thirst and that he could supply the "water of life." This is expressed in his conversation with the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well. She had been trying to satisfy her thirst for happiness — for meaning — by drinking deeply from the fountain of physical pleasure. But five husbands later she was still an unhappy woman.

The gospel does not deny the validity of many physical desires. It does, however, make a clear distinction between man's physical needs as over against his spiritual and emotional ones. Too often twentieth-century man tries to satisfy all of his thirsts at the same fountain. In an orientation which over-emphasizes the physical nature of things, he looks for all the answers to his problems in that material world.

What is the solution? It is found in the gospel of Christ. For it is through Christ that a right relationship between man and God is restored. This is often rejected as a way to happiness in our time for it rejects the romantic approach to happiness that finds its beginning and end in the pages of novels or in the mad rush to acquire and consume things. But the gospel brings us back to what many are seeking to escape — the reality of life. It tells us that we can be happy with tears in our eyes or when facing difficult and trying situations. For happiness is not a minus experience. It is not life minus hardships or minus sorrows or minus difficulties. Happiness is a plus experience. It is life plus purpose, plus direction, plus love and friendship. For the Christian man's happiness is life plus the spirit of Christ in his heart.

Exchange Students Revisit

The Youngsville Chapter of the American Field Service has been informed that Yvonne Craft has been chosen as the semi-finalist for Americans Abroad and two Youngsville area homes have been recommended to the New York office for an exchange student next term. These two preparatory actions require the community to raise $1500 to finance the program, John H. Kirk, treasurer, announced today.

There is no assurance that a student from another country will be assigned to Youngsville next year and the local chapter believes that the final acceptance of Yvonne is contingent only upon the A.F.S. finding a suitable home for this summer. The $1500 now being solicited by the Youngsville A.F.S. chapter covers travel and insurance expenses only. The host families here and abroad furnish ordinary living expenses.

Prior students visiting Youngsville were Dorthe Andersen, Kirsti Ahe, Takao Tanase, Ankie DeJongh, Inga Sigurdottir, Maggy Delfering, Mercedes Mestas-Delgado, and Allison Comfort who is here now.

Those who participated in the Summers Abroad program were Mary Ann Johnson Egbert, Sherri Craft, Janet Sweetland, Jeanne Maasz Getz, and Sue Beagle. The exchange students do not easily dismiss Youngsville from their thoughts. Ankie DeJongh recently was in Youngsville for a second visit since her year in Youngsville High School. Dorthe Andersen revisited Youngsville three years ago.

Each year the necessary funds have been raised by mail solicitation only. Please mail your contributions to John H. Kirk, finance chairman, 135 Marsh avenue, Youngsville, Pa. All checks should be made payable to "Foreign Student Exchange."

Church Is Site of Banquet

The annual mother and daughter banquet was held at the Sugar Grove Methodist Church under the sponsorship of the WSCS.

Mrs. Darwin Curtis served as mistress of ceremonies; awards were given to Mrs. Thomas Thompson, youngest mother present; Mrs. Russell Thompson, mother with most daughters present; and Mrs. Delmar Mickelson, oldest mother present.

The program included songs by a group of mothers and daughters and also by a group of younger girls. Tribute to mothers was given by Cindy and Sandy Warner, and to daughters by Mrs. Wendell Warner. Miss Allison Comfort, exchange student from New Zealand, who is attending school in Youngsville, was speaker. She showed slides and spoke on her homeland.

Committees were dining room—Mrs. Burt Schoonover, Mrs. Gerald Miller, Mrs. Clifford Storms, Mrs. John Lassinger, Mrs. T. E. Spottford and Mrs. Delmar Mickelson. On the kitchen committee were Mrs. Stanley Meelen, Mrs. Sheldon Carlson, Mrs. Fannie Hale and Mrs. Harry Sarvis. Mrs. Darwin Curtis and Mrs. E. L. Comstock were in charge of the program.

The Library Association wishes to thank the patrons and friends for their generous support. Letters were sent to some patrons who were not canvassed personally; if anyone receiving a letter has not responded, he may still send a contribution in the enclosed stamped envelope.

The following memorial books have recently been added to the shelves:

In memory of Mrs. Leonard

Henry—"This Is My Life" by Bjorn and "Julius Caesar" by Komaroff.

In memory of Mrs. Mary Devereaux—"Egypt's Queen Cleopatra" by Noble.

Any organization which is interested in films for a program can inquire at the library, where information as to titles, etc., can be obtained.

The Wednesday Morning Children's Story Hour will continue through May. After a two-week recess, the Summer Story Hour will begin June 21, and continue for eight weeks until August 16, with the exception of the week of July 5th. This session of Story Hour will be open for children aged four through seven years.

If any of the young people of the community would like to help with Story Hour or library work this summer, please contact the librarian, Miss Carrielle Swanson, before June 1 so that a suitable time schedule can be worked out.

YOU'VE GOT THEM NOW WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — When Paul Land and Bill Binter, employees at an apartment house, were told two white geese had escaped from a private lake at the apartments they went after the fleeing birds.

After much trouble with traffic on nearby streets they rounded up two geese and put them in the lake, then reported the event to their boss.

"What white geese?" asked the boss. "We don't have any white geese."

Even so, the geese remained at the lake unless and until an owner could be found.

Bradford Burglary Bungled

BRADFORD—It cost burglars about $5,000 to run out of gas here sometime late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning.

The gas was the oxygen and acetylene used to cut open the safe at the Clark Discount at 661 E. Main st., Bradford. The safecrackers did manage to cut open the door of a large walk-in vault in which the safe was located and escape with $545.29 in cash register receipts which had not been stored in the safe when the store closed Wednesday night.

About 1 p.m. Tuesday, the manager of nearby Quality Market reported his store had been entered through a ventilation duct on the roof. The quality money, police said, was listed at $54.76 in currency and was taken from a hiding place. The safe at Clark Discount contained some $5,000 in receipts and though the safe was damaged, it apparently could not be opened because of a shortage of fuel.

A local branch bank is located a short distance from the two establishments.

RITUAL IS FOLLOWED

Warren Honor Society Inducts 36

Thirty-six Warren High School students yesterday were inducted into the National Honor Society.

The pageantry of induction is a ritual observed each year the students are notified they have been accepted for the NHS.

Yesterday was no different. The 36 current members, sprinkled throughout the auditorium, opened the envelopes and read the names of the new members. The new members were ushered to the platform and brief resumes of their accomplishments and activities were read.

Ursula Corriero called the roll, while Becky Hagberg and Marv Shelgreen recited their activities. Le Van Dung, exchange student from Vietnam, presented the ceremonial candles, which were lit by Jane Kishauer and Chris Stoldt.

Speaker of the day was Ernest C. Miller, historian of the petroleum industry, author of numerous books and many articles in national and historical publications.

Pledge to new members was administered by Warren Area High School Principal Joseph Passaro.

During a brief talk, on the theme: "What Are You Going To Do With Your Life?" Miller reminded his young listeners that all the knowledge accumulated from the beginning of mankind on the earth until the year 1750, was not doubled until the year 1930.

"From 1930, every ten years after that date, the human knowledge doubled again," he stated. "So, we have eight or nine hundred times the amount of knowledge we formerly had. This is available to most of you, for practically no charge, at all. I urge you, if you can do nothing else with your life, use this knowledge to the best of your ability for all mankind, as representatives of the greatest nation that has ever graced the face of the earth." He concluded: "These are the only magic words I have for you!"

Principal Joseph Passaro remarked on the kaleidoscopic changes during which young people are maturing today. He reminded them that automation in the operation of elevators alone eliminated 40,000 jobs last year in the City of New York.

In addition to the importance of getting as complete an education as possible, Passaro reminded that this was only the beginning. "You are starting a process of training and retraining, which will continue throughout your life."

Marcia Newmaker gave the address of welcome to students, parents, faculty and visitors. Marv Jane Miller explained the symbolism of the society's emblem. Placing the four candles Janet Mead discussed the candle representing character. Craig Sealise spoke on scholarship. William Shaffer discussed leadership. Kathy Elberhard spoke of service.

Welcome committee included Cheryl Anderson, Kniare McDonald, Linda Bartz and Kathy Jenkins.

Parking arrangements were managed by Dan Sorenson and Bob DeLong.

The Warren Area High School Stage Band provided music. They were warmly received. A large number of this musical ensemble were among the inductees.

Tidioute Tackles Black Fly Menace

Large numbers of black fly larvae have been found in the streams in the Tidioute area. During the past week, The Tidioute Lions Club black fly chairman, Bob Schwab, Stanley Greene, state entomologist and William Willis, state medical entomologist, conducted the search for the larvae.

Indications are the area is in for a badly-infested black fly summer. Some of the larvae were found to be infected with parasites in addition to diseases of their own. Previous research at Pennsylvania State University revealed the black fly to be a carrier of disease.

Larvae were collected in vials on the field trip to be taken to Penn State for research.

Greene and Willis expressed concern over the large number of larvae found and will return later this month to continue their studies. They hope to come up with a safe and effective solution to the black fly problem.

The Tidioute Lions Club had a black fly larvae display in the showroom of Schwab's Ford garage so the public may see these pests in their docile stage. The larvae are kept in an aquarium and continually aerated to keep them alive, the equipment provided by Howard Christy of the Tidioute Aquarium Supply.

The Lions Club will continue to work with state officials and report findings and progress of the research.

OF AREA CAMPS

Three Arrested For Burglaries

Three Erie persons have been apprehended and charged with a series of camp burglaries which were discovered last Saturday.

In the county jail in lieu of $1,000 cash or $2,000 property bail each, are Cheryl Lynn Fulton, 18, whose parents reside at 1736 W. 8th st., Mariann Kurcheck, 21, 176 Weschler ave., and James Jesse Hammerman, 23, of 213 W. 16th st., all residents of Erie.

The camp burglaries were investigated by Chief Deputy Sheriff Richard E. Hegerty and state police trooper Gary L. Rain of the Warren substation.

Warrants for the apprehension of the three suspects were sent to Erie Monday where city police there picked up the Fulton girl. She was returned to Warren that day by Cpl. George Barron and Deputy Caroline Tridico and arraigned before peace justice Fred Berry.

According to Hegerty, state police of the Tionesta substation contacted police here stating they had found a possible stolen car, a 1966 Chevrolet which might have been taken from Erie. The car was spotted on Route 566, a back road near Mayburg.

In the car, Hegerty said, was a purse belonging to the second woman suspect, Mariann Kurcheck. Investigation disclosed, police stated that, Hammerman's grandfather owned a camp in the Mayburg area. Rain and Hegerty, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff James C. Peterson and Trooper Muse of Tionesta, arrested the Kurcheck woman and Hammerman at the camp about 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

Hammerman, police said, had a .22 loaded revolver in his possession but did not attempt to use it on the officers.

These two were arraigned before peace justice Raymond P. Gilmore since Berry was out of town.

Detainers have been filed for Hammerman and Kurcheck by state police in Tionesta for camp burglaries there.

Hammerman, a member of "God's Children," a motorcycle group centered in Erie, is also wanted by Erie city police for jumping bond while under indictment there, Hegerty said.

Police were continuing to interrogate the trio yesterday. Hegerty said two additional camps had been burglarized on Egypt Hollow rd. but owners had not yet been notified.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is smart in business, makes a fine living and is active in civic affairs. But he has a habit that is driving me nuts. He talks to himself.

If someone pays him a compliment during the day, he will walk around with a silly grin, repeating the compliment and enjoying it all over again. If he has had an argument at the office, he will rehearse the conversation, repeat what HE said, what the other fellow said, and then add what HE SHOULD have said.

He makes no attempt to keep his voice down. It is almost as if he is performing for me and the children. Tonight he went into a monologue on what he plans to say to his supervisor tomorrow if he gets criticized for the way he handled a deal.

It is creepy to hear this man talking to himself in full voice. Please tell me if you think he is losing his buttons?—GREENSBORO

DEAR GREENSBORO: In the past three weeks I have received over 2,000 letters from women whose husbands like to sleep in lace nightgowns and wear ladies' underwear. One loon asked his wife to make him some silk dresses to wear while watching T.V. And YOU are complaining because your husband talks to himself! Comparatively speaking, he's in very good shape.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son, his wife and children live in a neighboring subdivision. I like to go there every night for a beer and a little conversation. My wife says seven nights a week is too often. I say so long as people enjoy each other it is NOT too often.

Our son says I can't come over without his mother. His mother refuses to go more than four nights a week. We are having some terrible arguments over this and I wish you would straighten her out.—NEW JERSEY

DEAR JERSEY: You sure rattled the wrong cage, Bub. I am the founder of the Leave Your Married Kids Alone League. Four nights a week is too often to visit ANYBODY.

Go to your children's home when they telephone and invite you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in the women who could not get their husbands to fix things because I grew up in such a home. My father did not fix anything whatsoever and he was a carpenter by trade.

My mother and I took the kitchen stove apart and put it back together. We fixed the roof, the chimney, replaced broken windows, painted, plastered, and even repaired the plumbing. Just name it and my mother and I did it.

I married a man who is just like my father, but I decided I wasn't going to be workhorse like mama was. When something needed fixing I would ask my husband to do it. If within three days it wasn't done I'd hire someone. When he got the bill he'd blow up. My response was, "I'd rather pay out the money than nag you, dear."

In the last few years he has done all the repairs and I have never asked him more than once.—THE FOXY ONE

DEAR FOXY: You make a lot of sense, Girl. I recommend your plan as an anti-nag measure for all wives everywhere.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR FOLKS: One of my friends has the cutest artificial tree you ever saw, and believe me, he paid a fortune for it.

Well, by hook and by crook I outdid that tree, and now I'm going to tell you how to make one... for a patio, in the corner of your living room or for the den.

Get a small dead tree or a big piece of one and stick it in a heavy crock or pot with pebbles or stones around it. Buy plastic leaves and branches at the dime store and wire them to the limbs, as many or as few as you wish. (The green plastic covered wires that come on bread and vegetable trays are good for this job.) If the tree limb is fairly large, you can bore holes in it and stick these fabulous plastic leaves in each tiny hole.

Now to top it off, add some of the small plastic oranges, grapes, etc., that may have been gathering dust on your table. Even the pebbles and pot can be spray-painted if you wish.

The terrific point about this is that you can make your own tree any size you want, and it "grows" the way you want it to.

It never gets yellow, never gets bugs, you don't have to water it... and it's movable.

Bad Weather Doesn't Stop CVCC Women Golfing Fans

Inclement weather discouraged all golf play after the noon hour on Tuesday. A foursome of women played their hunch correctly and beat the storm and the whole field. The winners for the day were Mrs. G. Weston Ensforth, Mrs. John Lutz, Mrs. Robert Jones and Mrs. Stewart Nelson.

A buffet dinner was served to 91 women and followed by an address from the golf chairman, Mrs. Harry W. Conarro Jr., who announced that golf will be held every Tuesday, all day. Also, that a newly formed Fifth Division will be made of those with a handicap of more than 48, and all others. A rating of the course according to U.S.G.A. standards has been done for this new season, dropping the course rating and consequently raising handicaps.

Jane Porter Pupils Giving 2-Day Benefit Program

On the evenings of May 31 and June 1, the North Warren School auditorium will be the site of a benefit dance program. At 7:30 on the two evenings, Jane Porter will present her Folk and Highland Dancers in a selection of dances incorporating steps of authentic European origin. Included in the program will be piano interludes by Mrs. Porter's dance students who are also acquiring mastery of that instrument with various local piano teachers.

The specific goal of the benefit will be the purchase of a television set for the North Warren School, by means of the proceeds realized from the two-day presentation.

In conjunction with the benefit, a poster contest is being held in the 4th, 5th and 6th grades of North Warren School. Three prizes will be awarded and the winning posters will be displayed in local stores to advertise the event. Judging the posters on May 15, will be Elizabeth S. McClain, local artist.

Assisting Jane Porter is the following committee: Mrs. Richard Betts, posters; Mrs. William Lightner Jr., ticket chairman, with Mrs. Carl Brecht, Mrs. Frank Happ, and Mrs. Ralph Blanchard, and Mrs. Alfred Hilse, publicity.

cooling slightly. The cookies taste just as delicious and I don't have any more burned batches to throw away.

Most drop cookie recipes will work this way and I usually make two or three double recipes in one day. Enough to last a week or more.

DEAR HELOISE: Those plastic dry cleaner bags are handy if you need to sprinkle clothes on an ironing board. Slip one over the board lengthwise and it keeps the board dry.

They are nice to put the sprinkled clothes in, too! Helen Nibler

DEAR HELOISE: I have seven children and needless to say, make a large quantity of cookies when I bake. Here is the easy bake method I use and love.

Instead of dropping the cookie dough by the spoonfuls I spread it in a large flat pan, bake it for 20 minutes or so, then cut it into squares after

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

FOR SATURDAY, MAY 6, 1967

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries)—If someone really irritates you, take off for another area. If that is impossible, then get set with him or her on fair practices and live-and-let-live procedures. Control emotions.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus)—Gain extra time for special interests by consolidation, cutting red tape, eliminating unessentials. But be careful not to omit important details which could be highly important. THINK!

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini)—Mercury auspicious. You can accomplish a great deal now. Plan, negotiate, ask and grant favors, call meetings, analyze propositions, which seem to have good potentialities.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer)—Mixed influences. Carelessness in "minor" matters could cause a series of unwanted occurrences, reactions. Use your wit and graciousness to hold the line.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo)—Your frankness and generosity are the positive traits emphasized under this day's good aspects. Put these to clever use, and stress PRACTICAL EXECUTION in all your endeavors. Benefits increasing.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo)—Friendly influences. Cooperate with them all the way. Tend duties first, without straining, then share mutual interests with family. Stress friendly cooperation.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 23 (Scorpio)—Tread watchfully, to avoid needless errors and rubbing others the wrong way. Tact and understanding will do a great deal to keep matters going smoothly. Gains possible. NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius)—Plans indicate some complications not easily unravelled. Yet by diligent process, you will be able to rack up more than just fair results, and build a stronger foundation for the future.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn)—Better-than-average prospects, but you will have to grasp the good things firmly, and quickly put aside the undesirable. Use your best judgment.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius)—Harmony and self-control needed now. Don't antagonize those in a position to help you. Aim to improve ideas and methods.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces)—Wade through possible difficult issues, or relax in the pressureless periods. Whichever, you will need these traits: imagination, ability to see the humorous side, steadiness.

YOU BORN TODAY: Your sagacious outlook on life will be a boon during the remainder of '67 and on through '68. Events will change, so be on guard against pitfalls, and you will find the solutions necessary. You of this date have the ability to discriminate and quickly come up with true evaluations; are ready, even eager to get things done on time and efficiently. You are endowed with noble ideals and integrity. Uphold justice and fair-mindedness, as usual, and as you proceed, remain serene, assured. Capitalize on your wonderful artistic versatility. Birthdate of: Admiral R. E. Peary, Arctic explorer; M. de Robespierre, French Revolutionist; Sigmund Freud, pioneer in psychoanalysis.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

BRAIN WAVE HELMET

Telemetering the heart and brain waves has opened a new field of research. A Northwestern university halfback played all season with a $5,000 radio transmitter in his helmet. The device was connected to electroencephalographic electrodes that were glued to his scalp. Brain wave signals were conveyed to an instrument in the press box.

The study was conducted to determine whether the helmet protected the athlete from head injuries. Brain waves slow down whenever the individual is dazed or knocked unconscious from a blow on the head. The helmet afforded protection because there was only slight occasional slowing down despite the fact that offensive halfbacks take the worst beating in a football game.

New techniques have made it possible to relay these signals to a distant point during activity. Formerly, during an EEG exam, the subject was not supposed to move. Telemetering the electrocardiogram of the heart or blood pressure is a new way to determine changes while the person is working, exerting himself or sleeping. The electrocardiogram of a person with chest pain due to coronary disease is altered during exertion or excitement.

This type of equipment should not be confused with monitors found in the intensive care units and coronary centers of many hospitals. These patients are critically ill and are connected to units that record respiration, blood pressure, pulse, and cardiac rhythm. The doctor and nurses have emergency equipment and drugs available the moment the breathing stops or a heart irregularity develops.

In telemetry the individual is up and about. The equipment radios messages concerning the action of the heart or brain to an electronic receiver that is watched by a physician.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

ROSY OR PALE CHEEKED

Mrs. H. writes: Why do some children have rosy cheeks and others are pale or sallow?

REPLY
The rosy-cheeked youngster usually gets out of doors more often and is fed a well balanced diet, rich in proteins. Some children and adults are sallow by nature and will never look robust no matter how much fresh air they receive. These people are otherwise healthy and productive and live as long as others.

"MARKED" BY FRIGHT

Mrs. V. E. writes: If a pregnant woman was frightened by a dog in the fourth month, could this stop the baby's heart from growing so that the child will be born with heart disease?

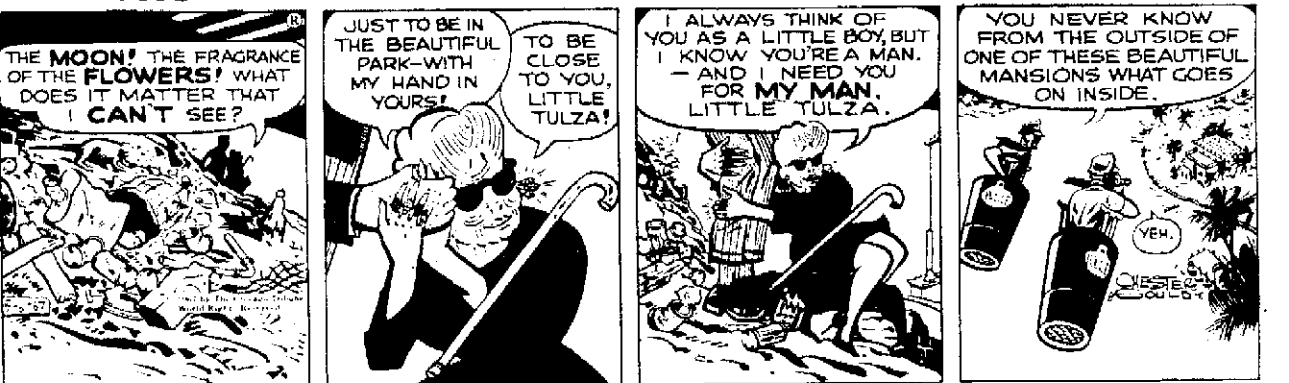

REPLY
No, because development of the heart is almost complete by this time. Furthermore, the fetus cannot be "marked" by fright.

BEER AND THE ARTERIES

M. L. writes: Could heavy beer drinking cause hardening of the arteries?

REPLY
Serious heart trouble was reported recently among very heavy beer drinkers. Hardening of the arteries was not responsible.

A TEEN-AGER'S FIRST CAR

by Henry Gregor Felsen

Tenth of a Series

YOUR FRIENDLY CONDITIONAL SALES CONTRACT

When you buy that car, you must make an agreement with the seller. This is known as a conditional sales contract, which may vary from state to state, from city to city, but is basically the same.

Read your contract carefully before you sign. It should be pretty obvious that as far as this treaty is concerned you are the poor Indian and the seller is the Great White Father with all the troops.

What legal promises do you make?
What do you promise to do?
What do you promise not to do?
What can they do to you (with your permission) if you don't do what you should and do what you shouldn't?

I have before me a typical conditional sales contract and have pulled out for you certain paragraphs. I won't try to explain every word and phrase, but only the important terms of such contracts:

"For $----- Down Payment on or before delivery, leaving a Deferred Balance of $----- payable at the office of ----- Bank, -----, in ----- equal successive monthly installments of $----- each on the same day of each month and commencing one month from the date hereof, or as indicated in Schedule of Payments below, with interest thereon after maturity at the highest lawful contract rate, and if this contract be placed with an attorney for collection, 15 per cent of the amount due hereunder as attorney's fees, or if prohibited, the amount prescribed by law. Buyer may pay in full at any time before maturity the debt of this contract and in so paying such debt shall receive for such anticipation of payments a refund credit in an amount as provided by Sec. 322.3, Code of Iowa, 1954, as amended by the Acts of the 57th G.A."

You agree to pay a certain amount at certain times, at certain interest. If they have to sue to collect, you agree to pay 15 per cent of the amount borrowed as fees for their attorney.

"1. Title to said property shall not pass to the purchaser until said amount is fully paid in cash."

You agree to let the seller remain as legal owner of the car until fully paid for. (Remember the third case in the last chapter.)

"2. No transfer, renewal, extension or assignment of this contract or any interest thereunder, or loss, injury or destruction of said property shall release the purchaser from his obligation hereunder; the assignee shall be entitled to all rights of the seller."

You promise, if the car is sold, if somebody else takes over your payments, if the car is damaged, lost, or destroyed, to stay responsible for paying the debt in full.

"3. In the event the purchaser defaults on any payments or fails to comply with any condition of this contract or a proceeding in bankruptcy, receivership or insolvency be instituted against the purchaser of his property, or the seller deems the property in danger of misuse or confiscation, the full amount shall at the election of the seller, be immediately due and payable, and purchaser hereby authorizes any attorney-at-law to appear for said purchaser in any court of record in the United States, waive the issue and service of process, and confess judgment against said purchaser for the amount due hereunder in favor of the seller or assignee."

You agree that, should you fail to meet payments as promised, or violate any other condition of the contract, or are facing bankruptcy, or if you misuse the car, or if there is danger some other creditor might grab it, the seller has the right to seize the car and sell it to pay off the full loan. If the car doesn't bring in that much money, you have to come up with whatever is owing.

"4. No warranties have been made by the seller unless endorsed hereon in writing."

No promises made by the dealer to you are binding upon him, unless they are made a part of the conditional sales contract. In other sections of the contract:

You promise to pay all taxes due on the car, not to use it for security to get other loans, not to use it for any illegal purpose, not to use it improperly, not to use it for hire, not to remove it from the state without permission of the seller, not to sell anyone a share of the ownership.

Also, any insurance payments you collect go first to pay off your creditor. You also give the seller the right to insure the car and to charge you for it.

If the seller thinks the car in danger of misuse or confiscation, he can take possession of it and all accessories (all the "goodies" you have put on), with or without notice to you. He can put the car up for sale, adding all costs to your debt. If there is still money owing after the sale, you agree to pay it — plus interest.

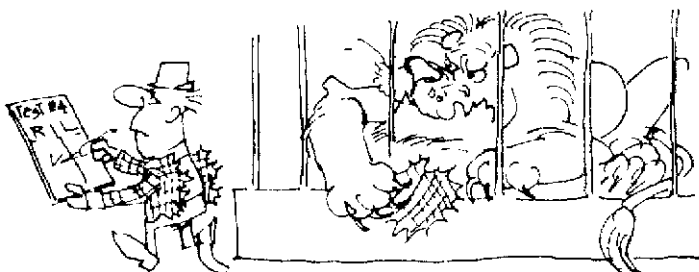

If you happen to owe the seller of the car any money for anything else, that debt becomes a part of this one. If the amount is under $300, the nearest justice of the peace is all the seller needs in the way of a court to nail you to the wall.

Beyond Our Control . . .

The failure of the Kennedy administration to fertilize the wasteland came from not realizing that the good things it wanted to see and hear had to be liberated from the need to make a profit—liberated exactly as universities and schools and scientific institutes and museums and parks have been set apart from the marketplace.

Only a fool would say that this is anticapitalistic. There are all the churches and schools and libraries in Christendom to testify to the absurdity of such an idea.

The Kennedy administration was indisputably right in saying that the airwaves are public property and that the franchise to operate on them is a valuable privilege for which a rental should be paid. It was a service to establish in the public mind the principle that the use or revenues from these rentals could properly be drawn upon to subsidize noncommercial public television.

But other things being equal, it would be enormously difficult to induce Congress to tax the commercial broadcasting companies heavily enough to subsidize a good public television network. It might be at least as complicated as writing a tariff bill, and it would call into play all manner of special and local interests. It would involve Congress in a continual pulling and hauling over the profits of the broadcasting companies and the financial needs of public television.

Fortunately, the country can now spare itself such an unappetizing and unattractive political scuffle. The nature of the problem has been revolutionized by a remarkable scientific invention which promises to change in more ways than we are now able to imagine the whole process of communications over long distances, and thus of broadcasting itself.

The invention is a byproduct of our enormous investment in the exploration of space. It is popularly known as "Syncom."

This is the name of a comparatively small satellite whose orbit is synchronized with the rotation of the earth and is used for communication. Such satellites were first developed by the Hughes Aircraft Corp. under contract with the federal government and were put into orbit by NASA. Earlybird, now relaying telephone calls and television signals across the Atlantic, is such a satellite.

Last August the Ford Foundation put forward its first proposals for the use of satellite technology in order to distribute inside the United States cheaper and better television. The Ford proposal was that a portion of the savings which would accrue to commercial television from the use of the satellite be used to finance a national noncommercial television network.

The original Ford proposals have been somewhat revised. They now call for "hanging" two or three satellites over the United States. Each would transmit 24 television channels, and together they would serve the continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The capital cost of the satellite system is estimated by the scientists and economists retained by the Ford Foundation to be $100 to $115 million. Distribution of commercial television by this system, rather than by the present system of land lines and microwave relay towers, would by 1970 reduce those costs by upwards of $30 million per year. Some of the savings would be used to reduce the amount of money paid by commercial broadcasters for distribution. But some would not be passed on to them, but would instead be used to give money for distribution to noncommercial television.

In the original proposals the Ford Foundation experts reckoned that this source of revenue would provide adequate funds for a noncommercial television network. But, according to more recent estimates, income from tax revenues would also be necessary. A study by Dr. Joseph Pechman of the Brookings Foundation, which is appended to the Ford Foundation proposals, suggests that taxes on long-distance communications or broadcasting revenues or taxes on radio and television sets might be used.

To finance a public television network the Carnegie report recommends an excise tax on television sets. It estimates that a tax gradually increasing to 5 per cent over the 10 years needed to set up a public television network would yield enough revenue to cover the cost of such a network—roughly $100 million per year.

There is no disposition among the backers of public television to be dogmatic about the details of the project. I think we can be quite confident that the effort is in sound and disinterested hands.

The technology of a satellite system is sufficiently advanced so that we know that it will work. With experiment and experience it will no doubt be made to work better. The central principle of the public television project is established and indisputable; if television is to serve the unsalable interests of man it must be established like a university or a church on a noncommercial basis.

The principle of the project is also indisputable in that the airwaves are public property and that satellite technology, which has been financed by public money, belongs to the public.

Can a noncommercial network be administered honestly and intelligently? Why not? If universities and libraries and art galleries can be administered so that they are indispensable in a civilized society, then a public television network can be so administered.

Friendly is the spokesman of those who can do it and are yearning for the chance to show what can be done with the most remarkable and the most poorly utilized invention since the coming of the printing system.

Rebecca Ann Norris Has Role In Play 'Mary, Mary' May 12-13

The cast of Warren Players' next comedy production, "Mary, Mary", will include Rebecca Ann Norris in one of the leading roles. The popular comedy hit will be presented next Friday and Saturday evenings, May 12 and 13, at Beatty Auditorium.

Becky Norris is both one of the younger members of Players and also one of the most active. Since joining the theatrical group four years ago she has appeared in many productions and assisted in many more backstage. Last season she served as Chairman of the Program Committee.

Among Becky's acting credits are: "Thieves Carnival",

Rebecca Norris

"Thurber Carnival", "Detective Story", "The Tender Trap" and this season's successful musical "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying".

In "Mary, Mary", Becky will portray the role of Tiffany Richards a spoiled, independently wealthy, social gad-about who has become the source of conflict in the estranged marriage of Mary and Bob McKellaway. Though she is younger and prettier than Mary, she also proves to be intellectually inferior and the dialogues between Mary and Tiffany are a highlight of this hilarious Jean Kerr comedy.

95 ENGINES FOR APOLLO

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Saturn 5-Apollo spacecraft combination that will carry American astronauts to the moon late in this decade will have a total of 95 engines of various thrust.

Forty-one of the engines are on the 36-story-tall Saturn 5. The largest are five F-1 engines with total thrust of 7.5 million pounds to lift the 3,000-ton vehicle off the ground. Control engines ranging down to a thrust of only 70 pounds are located throughout the rocket.

The three-man Apollo spacecraft has 54 engines for steering through space, including the motor which two of the astronauts will use to launch themselves from the moon to rejoin the third spaceman who will orbit the moon while they explore.

For a description of what is wrong with television, for an analysis of how the wrong came about and for a lead on how to do something about it all, there is nothing better in print than Friendly's passionate book. It is the work of one of the most original minds concerned with the new art of electronic journalism.

Friendly knows all the secrets of the broadcasting business, and after years of successful practice he has become fed up with the reigning and pervasive commercialism. He has turned reformer and has aligned himself with the Ford Foundation and the Columbia school of journalism. Friendly is now the chief public spokesman of a new approach to the problem of how television can be made to serve the unsalable but nonetheless important interests of men.

Although the art of broadcasting is comparatively new, it has already passed through several phases. The first phase was its age of innocence. Back in 1922, Herbert Hoover, who was then secretary of commerce, was much concerned with legislation about the use of the airwaves.

He said then that "it was inconceivable that we should allow so great a possibility for service, for news, for entertainment, for education and for vital commercial purposes to be drowned in advertising chatter." The inconceivable happened.

In 1966, says Friendly, "one can count as many as 25 commercials or announcements per hour on radio and television." But in the early days of the infant industry, such men as William Paley and David Sarnoff made the same innocent assumptions as did Mr. Hoover.

Paley testified proudly that his company had "found itself able to devote approximately 75 per cent of our time on the air to public service, as contrasted with sponsored programming." And Sarnoff "envisioned NBC as a nonprofit organization in which all advertising was to be excluded. RCA would make its profits by manufacturing radio sets."

As late as the mid-Thirties Paley told the Federal Communications Commission that CBS does not "appear here primarily to be a business organization, except to the extent that economics are a necessary means to any social ends. Surely any stress of economics as an end in themselves would betray a lack of understanding of the vital role which broadcasting plays on every plane of American life."

The age of innocence came to an end during the 1950s when, with the addition of television, broadcasting became even more profitable and even bigger business. With the advent of the Kennedy administration the public was ready for strong measures to improve the commercial programs.

Newton Minow, who led the Kennedy effort, took as his basic supposition the idea that the companies could be cajoled, exhorted and coerced into putting excellence and public service ahead of profits. Commercial broadcasting was to be regulated by the government, and the sow's ear was to be made into a silk purse.

It was a noble idea, but it proved to be wishful. The power of the broadcasting industry to resist effective regulation was just too strong for the government officials.

Friendly's book, the studies and reports made by the Ford Foundation and the Carnegie Foundation and President Johnson's message of Feb. 28, 1967, announce a new phase in which the reformers of television are now working.

They believe that the way to make better television is to give up trying to reform the commercial companies and to establish alongside of them, and in competition with them for public approval, at least one public network which will serve the unhappy and neglected minority now ignored by the commercial companies.

We need better to understand how commercialism debases television programs if we are to see more clearly why our hopes today are no longer centered on the reform of the existing networks, but on the establishment of at least one separate and independent noncommercial network.

The commercialism of television gravitates around the fact that the price of time on the air is determined by the number of people who are watching and listening to any particular broadcast. There is, of course, no way of counting them. No one can interview the owners of the 55 million television sets and find out what, if anything, they are listening to.

So the broadcasters and the advertisers have decided to rely on a mechanical device which is attached to a statistical sample of 1,200 sets in 1,200 guinea-pig households. The device registers what program each set is tuned to at any moment. The greater the percentage turned on, the more valuable the program and the higher the price that can be charged to the advertisers. This is the rating system by which broadcasting is measured and priced commercially.

Lippmann

No one is quite sure, says Friendly, that the ratings are correct. But this does not matter so long as the salesmen of the broadcasting companies and the advertisers and the Wall St. experts all agree to regard the ratings "as the Bible." From the ratings, which are remarkably alike for the three networks, brokers and investors forecast the advertising sales and expected earnings and determine the price of the stock.

Television and radio are big business with revenues which are now in sight of $3 billion a year. The high executives and the big stockholders who run these business corporations are convinced that they cannot let the price of their stocks decline, indeed, that the price of their stocks must be made continually to rise. So they appoint as the managers and directors of the programs which are to go on the air men for whom the prime consideration must be what will receive the highest rating.

There are exceptions to this rule, but they are rare, such as the time devoted John Kennedy's assassination and to Winston Churchill's funeral. Day in and day out the programs on the air are determined by what profit they will bring.

This is the mechanism of commercialism in broadcasting. And this is how the original promises and the age of innocence was shattered.

Public protest against the quality of television programs increased in the 1950s, especially after the exposure of the frauds in the quiz shows. With the advent of the Kennedy administration, the intellectual community rose to great influence. In it, dissatisfaction with the quality of television was particularly acute.

President Kennedy chose for the chairman of the Federal Communications Commission Newton Minow, a law partner of Adlai Stevenson.

A few months after his appointment Minow delivered the memorable speech in which he called television "a vast wasteland. . . a procession of game shows, violence, audience participation shows, formula comedies about totally unbelievable families, blood and thunder, mayhem, violence, sadism, murder, western badmen, western good men, private eyes, gangsters, more violence and cartoons. And, endlessly, commercials—many screaming, cajoling and offending. And most of all, boredom. True, you will see a few things you will enjoy. But they will be very, very few. And if you think I exaggerate, try it."

With all this fervor, despite the high hopes that something would be done, the Kennedy administration failed altogether. Four years later, in March 1965, a new FCC commissioner, E. William Henry, admitted the failure: "The so-called barren (the wasteland) years of 1960-61 had 22 per cent more network public service hours and 15 per cent more network public service programs than the season just passed."

Although it was a failure, the Kennedy-Minow-Henry attempt to improve television was a most instructive failure. Its basic assumption was that the government could compel commercial broadcasters to serve the public and the arts though these are unprofitable, that the government could compel the big companies to give serious consideration to uncommercial programs.

The Kennedy-Minow-Henry theory was that the franchises to operate on the airwaves were a right to use a valuable public property and that, therefore, the government had the right to lay down terms and conditions. The FCC would refuse to renew the franchises of the broadcasters if they did not perform enough public service or show enough taste. The government was supposed to decide whether they did or they didn't. Regulation did not work.

It failed because those whose business it is to make money by buying and selling time on the air cannot be expected to devote some part of each to programs which not only earn nothing on the air, but cause them to lose money they would otherwise have earned.

The regulatory method runs counter to the facts of life. It supposes that the broadcasters can function permanently as schizophrenics, one part of their brain intent on profits and another part of that same brain intent on public service and the arts.

The failure taught those who are deeply concerned with the problem of television that if it is to serve interests which are not salable in the market we must do for television what has been done for all the other human interests which we value even though they cannot be bought and sold.

One may believe, as I do, that the marketplace is a necessary and a desirable way of regulating a great deal of our economic activity. But that does not mean that the marketplace should regulate everything—education, religion, scientific research, artistic creation, good works, neighborliness, friendship and love. Some of the best things in life do not have a price tag on them. When they do have a price tag on them we say that they are prostituted.

TE LA DI O

By Lenore McIntyre-TV Editor
WEEK'S PREVIEW

It's a real ho-hum week for televiewing and regardless of what the ratings bureaus have to say about it I predict that a good many homes won't even have the picture tube aglow. About all that can be recommended are the newscasts and the weather shows.

CBS is making no effort to be interesting, ABC and NBC are repeating a couple specials, and the only new and exciting program is NBC's "Pursuit of Pleasure" at 10 p.m. Monday. It is understandably placed at that hour considering the publicity releases which indicate frank discussion on such matters as pornography, sexual freedom and promiscuity, nudity in public, and the use of narcotics and the psychedelic drugs.

Oh yes, NBC also has a special, the Colgate Comedy Hour on Thursday night, which may be good for a few laughs. The two repeats are NBC's "Michelangelo" on Sunday evening and ABC's "Carousel" the same night.

There is variety for those who like sports. There are baseball games on Saturday and Sunday, the Notre Dame Alumni football game Saturday, the Houston golf tournament Saturday and Sunday, and soccer games on Sunday. Also, the Kentucky Derby Saturday afternoon.

WPSX-TV, Ch. 3 has a discussion of today's Germany, "Germany and its Shadow" on Net Journal Monday night; a look at the used car market on Your Dollars Worth Wednesday night; Conversations with Arnold Toynbee on "The Haves and Have Nots," on Thursday night; and news of the week from the nation's capital on Washington Week in Review Friday night.

Ch. 3's music and drama offerings for the week include the Igor Stravinsky masterpiece, "Story of a Soldier," Monday night; "New York Scrapbook," a gay musical review saluting and satirizing life in the big city with Kaye Ballard and Orson Bean on Wednesday p.m.; and Friday night, "The Battle of Culloden," a newsreel approach to the last battle fought on British soil, followed by Calypso with Stan Shepard.

A FUNNY THING HAPPENED
Remember Jack Paar? The temperamental guy who used to weep on the Tonight Show B.C. (Before Carson) and had a running feud with Ed Sullivan? Well, he's coming back to TV for a special on Sunday, May 14, titled "Jack Paar and a Funny Thing Happened on the Way to Hollywood."

Hollywood's movie industry has meant many things to many people; the hope for instant stardom, an art form for self-expression, a medium for mass entertainment, even a springboard to political office.

To Jack Paar it is a provocative subject for a humorous closeup of the people, product and proceedings of the film capital. In this special, he will be joined by Judy Garland (who can't give up) who will talk about her long and eventful movie career which began at the age of 13, and Bob Newhart (whom Johnny Carson disappointed by coming back) doing a routine as a night watchman on duty for the first time when King Kong decides to scale the Empire State Building.

In his opening monologue (which he enjoys so much) Paar will take a look back in time to show excerpts from his own brief film career, including a scene with the late Marilyn Monroe. Then, using film clips, he will go on to spoof screen tests, foreign dubbing, awards and dance routines.

Celebrities appearing in the clips will include James Cagney, Sophia Loren, Ginger Rogers, Mickey Rooney and Jayne Mansfield. There will also be a sequence of clips devoted to Ronald Reagan, a real life drama star who made it all the way to the state capital and is now looking eastward.

PEOPLE & PROGRAMS

BARBRA STRESAND will have another CBS special next fall, titled "Belle of 14th Street."

PICCADILLY PALACE replaces Hollywood Palace Saturday nights on the ABC network, starting May 20. The new musical comedy hour is produced in England and features noted British entertainers with American guest stars.

SUMMER FOCUS premieres May 18 on ABC replacing ABC Stage 67. "Free Press, Fair Trial" will be an hour-long discussion, via Early Bird Satellite, on the freedom of the press in the U.S. and Great Britain, featuring leading members of the press and legal profession in America and abroad.

TOWN MEETING OF THE WORLD, May 15 on CBS, will witness Senator Robert Kennedy in Syracuse and Governor Reagan in Sacramento exchanging views and being questioned by an international array of students attending universities in England, all via Early Bird satellite.

DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS, a Project 20 special on NBC, will present the dramatic and historic story of man on deep waters, a story of the beauty and mystery of the ships and the magic of the sea. Date for showing is to be announced.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE FIGHT between Dick Tiger and Jose Torres will be televised Tuesday, May 16, at 10 p.m. on Ch. 7.

NBC NEWS inaugurates television's first regularly scheduled use of satellite transmission of news with the premiere of The Frank McGee Saturday Report on May 20. The new program will link all the capitals of Europe, including Moscow and other Communist bloc cities, with North America, via the Early Bird satellite. It is hailed as the first step toward instant global communications.
